Two Monarchs Offer to Make Bid for Peace

Wilhelmina and Leopold to Approach Belligerents

IN JOINT PLEA

Think 'Fixed Basis of Reasonable Peace' Is Possible

Amsterdam —(AP)— Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands and King Leopold of the Belgians announced today they would send messages to Germany, Great Britain and France jointly offering their good offices for peace.

The offer to be made to the heads of state of the warring powers will be as follows, an official announcement said:

"In the hour of anxious tension for the world, before war in western Europe begins with full power, we are convinced we are obligated to make our voices heard again.

"The belligerents declared some time ago that they are not standing obstinately against examination of a reasonable and fixed basis of a reasonable peace.

Contact Difficult

"We consider that in the actual circumstances it is difficult for the belligerents to seek contact with one another, and as the sovereigns of two neutral states which have good relations with all their neighbors, we are willing to offer our good offices.

"In case they are accepted, we are willing to use all means which the belligerents give us and which we possess to find, in the spirit of friendly understanding, factors to facilitate an agreement.

"This appears to be our task for the welfare of our peoples and for the whole world.

"We hope our offer will be accepted and that in this way the first step will be taken toward permanent peace."

The announcement was issued shortly after King Leopold departed for Brussels following a surprise conference with the queen which started last night.

Accompanied by his foreign minister, Paul Henri Spaak, Leopold conferred with Wilhelmina until a late hour last night and had a second talk with her this morning.

Identical telegrams were sent to King George VI of Britain, President Albert Lebrun of France and Fuehrer Adolf Hitler of Germany.

The Hague—(AP)—Leopold, king of the Belgians, and Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands engaged today in apparently urgent talks aimed, observers believed, at keeping their countries out of war and protecting their vital interests.

There were suggestions that the two lowland states, lying between Europe's great warring powers, were seeking to reconcile divergent foreign policies and present a joint neutrality front.

King Leopold arrived late last evening after a hurried motor trip from Brussels and proceeded at once to the Noordeinde palace, where he conferred with Queen Wilhelmina until 1:30 a. m.

King Leopold followed up last night's conference with another hour and one-half meeting with Queen Wilhelmina today.

There was no official announcement on the nature of the talk, but informed quarters said King Leopold was concerned over the possibility of a German attack against France through Belgium.

The king had lunch with the queen and then left with his foreign minister, Paul Henri Spaak, for Brussels.

Participating in the conference were Queen Wilhelmina's foreign

Board Balks Move To Revise Civil Service Salaries

Heil Request Sidetracked; Personnel Group Plans Survey

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—The state board of personnel, dominated by Republicans, last night laid aside a request from Governor Heil and the state emergency board to make a survey of state personnel with a view to revising salary scales, and decided to make a classification survey which may be the basis for salary revisions later this year.

Heil's request for board action accompanied reports from informed sources that the Republican administration has decided to order, if it is legally possible, a general 10 per cent salary cut in the civil service in order to stave off for a time at least treasury deficit. Such a reduction, administration men have confidentially estimated, may save up to $1,500,000 for the remainder of Heil's term.

The administration's request to the board of personnel—which consists of two Republicans and a LaFollette hold-over—suggested a survey to determine the possibility of state salary revisions "in view of economic conditions". It also asked for a survey of state job classifications. The board in a formal action last night voted to honor the second request, but to delay action on the question of salaries until the results of the reclassification survey had been completed.

Explain Action

Board members explained that they will probably have to ask Heil's office for extra funds to make the study, and added that when it is finished they will find that just as many employes deserve raises as reductions in their pay checks.

"I am not in sympathy with any attempt to have this board make a downward revision in salary schedules", said Bjarne Mjelde of Stoughton, the LaFollette member of the board.

Roy Reed of Ripon, Heil appointed Republican chairman, made the motion to postpone the suggestion of the executive office, and then launched into a general criticism of state classification policies. There are, he complained, at least five classifications for stenographers, with varying salary ranges. A. J. Opstedal, personnel bureau director, explained that there are more than 900 separate job classes in the state service. Reed figured that number could be reduced to about 400, with possible economies resulting.

14 Women in Picket Line at Main Dodge Plant in Auto Dispute

Detroit —(AP)— Fourteen women sympathetic to the cause of the United Auto Workers (C. I. O.) appeared on the picket line today at the Chrysler Corporation's main Dodge plant in Hamtramck and said they constituted the "reply" to Mrs. Clara Schindler, who appeared yesterday to protest the labor stalemate.

Approximately 55,000 Chrysler workers and as many more in allied industries have been made idle by the Chrysler-U. A. W. A. dispute now in its fifth week.

Negotiations looking to a settlement continued today.

"We want to show the public that Mrs. Schindler is the exception, not the rule," said Mrs. Mary Waldren, who explained that she organized the Dodge local No 3 women's auxiliary.

Signs carried by the U. A. W. A.-C. I. O. women included:

"Our husbands are men, not mice"

"Our kids are the union men of tomorrow."

Mrs Waldren said her husband had worked for Chrysler seven years and her son for eight.

Soviet Russia Displays Her Military Might as War Chief Says Nation 'Must be Prepared'

Moscow —(AP)— Soviet Russia capped her celebration of the twenty-second anniversary of the communist revolution with a display of military might today as War Commissar Klement Voroshiloff warned that though neutral, the nation "must be prepared."

Voroshiloff spoke briefly in Red square, through which thousands of troops marched in a parade that lasted more than an hour and one-half.

"The soviet government watches the international situation and will react to every event," Voroshiloff declared after praising the work of soviet troops in Poland and Outer Mongolia.

Mechanized units, including 206 medium-sized tanks, formed a large part of the military display.

Prefacing the parade was the keynote speech of Premier-Foreign Commissar Molotoff last night. He predicted the end of capitalism and inferentially urged communists in foreign countries to work toward that aim.

"The names of Lenin and Stalin arouse bright hopes in every corner of the world and resound as a call to fight for peace and the happiness of nations, to fight for complete emancipation from capitalism," Molotoff said.

Referring to economic crises since 1929, in which he specifically mentioned the United States, Great Britain and France, Molotoff suggested:

"Is any further proof needed to show that the internal affairs of capitalist countries are in a very bad way indeed, that discontent is naturally gathering among their exploited and oppressed masses and that everything is making for new and inevitable outbreaks against the power of capitalism?"

HE'S BACK OF OHIO PENSION CAMPAIGN

Ohio voters today are deciding whether they will adopt the pension plan advocated by white-haired Herbert S. Bigelow (above) which would guarantee $50 monthly to single persons and $80 monthly to couples over 60 years of age. He would obtain the money by taxes on income and high-priced real estate. The pre-election campaign has been bitter, with opponents claiming yesterday that the plan would be badly defeated.

'Bargains Galore in Every Store' Is Slogan Merchants Will Use for Appleton Day

The retail division of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce promised today that merchants of Appleton aren't fooling when they say they will be offering unusual bargains at Appleton day on Thursday.

"Bargains galore in every store" is the slogan the merchants have adopted for the fall shopping event. And the committee, headed by Wayne Jones, has received assurance from the merchants that bargains will be so numerous that shoppers will have to go at top speed to take advantage of them all.

An innovation for Appleton day is the "guest courtesy card" which appears in tonight's Post-Crescent and which should be clipped by people living outside the city who plan to shop in Appleton Thursday.

The coupons are to be attached to car windshields. Through the cooperation of the Appleton day committee and the police department, a plan has been approved whereby these coupons entitle out-of-town shoppers to parking privileges on Appleton streets during the 1-day bargain event. The coupons have been issued as a gesture of courtesy by Appleton merchants and the police department.

Members of the committee assisting Jones are J. R. Whitman, T. O. Haugen, and Royall LaRose. The

Parole Is Sought for Earl Gentry's Slayer

Madison —(AP)— Carl D. Church, who is serving a life term in state prison for the slaying in 1934 of Earl Gentry, was described before the pardon board today as a peaceable drifter who fell into crime while defending a Jefferson woman who befriended him.

Seeking executive clemency for Church, who was sentenced on a guilty plea by Circuit Judge George Grimm July 5, 1934, Attorneys D. B. Malone of Waukesha and Herbert Siggelko of Madison, presented a petition signed by 1,080 Jefferson county residents.

Among the spectators was Mrs. Carrie Gill, Jefferson, known as the "sunshine lady," who was acquitted by a jury on a charge of being an accessory before the murder.

Malone and Siggelko told the board Gentry subjected Mrs. Gill to "unspeakable" abuses while he lived with her from 1922 until his death June 30, 1934. They said Church, who came into the home as an odd jobs employe, decided to help Mrs. Gill get rid of Gentry.

Held for Trial on Lobbying Charge

F. W. Cords Faces Court On Allegation He Offered Money to Beat Bill

Madison —(AP)— Superior Judge Roy H. Proctor today ordered that Fred W. Cords, Milwaukee, be held for trial in Dane county circuit court on a charge he offered to accept money to obtain defeat of a bill before the 1939 legislature.

The trial was tentatively set for Nov. 27.

Judge Proctor dismissed a charge that Cords acted as a lobbyist before he registered with the secretary of state. Assistant District Attorney Henry H. Behnke moved for dismissal after a preliminary hearing at which Assemblyman Charles F. Westfahl (R) Milwaukee, and Assemblyman Arthur J. Balzer (D) West Allis, testified for the state.

Behnke told the court a John Doe investigation indicated Westfahl and Balzer would testify that Cords approached them on legislative matters before he registered as a lobbyist July 12. The legislators asserted today they could not recall when the conversations occurred.

The registration charge had been filed by the attorney general, but Behnke was named an assistant attorney general temporarily to handle the case. The district attorney filed the other charge.

Germany Unbeatable, Marshal Goering Says

Berlin—(AP)—Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering told foreign correspondents today he regarded Germany as unbeatable and even if the United States built a great number of airplanes "it doesn't mean yet that they are over here."

In exceptionally good humor, Goering submitted to questions by foreign correspondents at a reception given by the new Soviet ambassador, Alexander A. Schkwarzeff.

"The fact that I am here at this time should in itself tell you better than any words can as to just what the situation is," he asserted "If anybody had told us in 1933 that our fight with England and France would bring us side-by-side with Russia we should have been regarding him as crazy."

Supreme Court Orders Charges Reinstated

Madison—(AP)—The supreme court today ordered reinstatement of charges against Albert J. Hess, Caswell, accused of sharing in illegal profit from sale of tax delinquent Forest county lands to the federal government.

The case against Hess, member of the Forest county board, was dismissed by Circuit Judge George J. Leicht last Jan 9 after similar charges against Lester A Carter, Forest county treasurer, were dismissed by Circuit Judge R. S. Cowie after trial.

Tries in Vain to Get Into Jail at LaCrosse

LaCrosse—(AP)—Three times a man giving the name of Victor Meiers, 27, of New York city, unsuccessfully tried to get into jail last night. Three times his pleas were rejected. Then he tossed a brick through the glass door of a hotel and waited for arrest. He was haled into county court this morning, given a suspended sentence and ordered to leave the city.

Defense, Farm Issues Up in Next Session

Reciprocal Trade Program Renewal Also To be Considered

MAP KEY PROBLEMS

Agricultural Banks, Drought Relief, Crop Benefits Proposed

Washington — (AP)—National defense, farm legislation and renewal of the reciprocal trade program were put forward today by some congressional leaders as key issues in the 1940 session.

The administration already has served notice that it would request an expanded defense program when congress meets in January. The idea found quick support—and a measure of criticism—from members of both major parties.

Plans for a new system of agricultural banks, drought relief, and liberalized crop benefits were among the farm proposals.

The reciprocal trade law, under fire in the senate during the special session, was criticized today by Representative Martin of Massachusetts, the Republican house leader. He said he had been promised Democratic backing in an effort to terminate the act expiring in June under which the state department has negotiated trade treaties with a score of countries.

Before leaving the capital for home, Martin called the trade program an "attempt to circumvent congressional control over tariffs."

Chairman Smith (D-S. C.) of the senate agriculture committee disclosed that he would work for legislation to set up a new $2,000,000,000 system of agricultural banks.

Smith said there should be one federal bank in every state. They would make one to five year advances to farmers at interest rates exactly covering the cost of the loans. The present federal land banks, he declared, "are mere adjuncts to the commercial banking system."

"Armistice" Ended

The final twirl of the pen that repealed the arms embargo put an end to the so-called political armistice which has existed for the last two months.

Republicans now are free to take a pot-shot at Democrats wherever they catch them. Anti-New Dealers can return to their sport of gunning for the administration.

The brief truce gave both parties a chance to take stock of their situation, however, even though it was not a complete truce in the full meaning of the word.

Neither the Republicans, the anti-New Dealers nor the New Dealers wholly laid down their arms. They simply brought their guns to a "rest" position, butts on the ground, and kept a tight clasp on the barrel, to be able to snap back quickly to a firing stance.

All sorts of jockeying went on in the interim. The Republicans sought to maneuver themselves into a situation where the leap year election light would depict them as the peace party. Democrats generally joined in combatting this effort.

Four Sentenced in Dairy Fraud Case

Two are Given Prison Terms, Two Others Sent to County Jail

Beloit —(AP)— Judge C. H. Christensen today sentenced two men to prison terms and two men to the county jail for defrauding the Merrick Dairy company of $5,543 through use of cream slips made out to fictitious names.

Andrew J. Finley, 50-year-old former tavernkeeper who was convicted by a municipal court jury last week, was sentenced to serve one to four years at Waupun state prison.

Elmer L. Yeager, Winona, Minn., former employe of the dairy, who pleaded guilty, was sentenced to serve one to two years at Waupun, but the court directed that he be credited with the nine months he had been held in jail here.

Two farmers, Joseph C. Relph, Beloit, and Jess Schaff, Brodhead, who also pleaded guilty, were sentenced to serve a year in the county jail, but Judge Christensen said that when they had served 30 days he would suspend the remainder of the terms and place them on probation.

District Attorney John H. Matheson, in opposing a plea for leniency for Finley, declared "my opinion is that the case isn't entirely solved yet." He did not amplify that statement.

Veteran Employe of State Is Discharged

Madison— (AP)— Attorney General John E. Martin announced today he had discharged Joseph E. Messerschmidt, a departmental employe for 44 years and senior assistant since Jan. 1, 1926.

"The reason for your dismissal is that you are unable to take care of the demands of the work of this office and that you are unable to properly care for the work demanded of you," Martin's dismissal notice stated.

Messerschmidt, 71 years old, has been receiving a salary of $5,000 a year as senior assistant attorney general. It was said that Martin offered to put him on half time work but that Messerschmidt refused the offer.

Hull Opposes Plan To Shift Ships to Foreign Registry

Says Action Would Impair Neutrality Law Integrity

VOICES VIEWS

Commission Gets Secretary's Statement but Does Not Act

Washington—(AP)—Secretary Hull expressed today his opposition to the transfer to Panamanian registry of United States Lines ships as impairing the integrity of the neutrality act.

Hull said he had given this opinion to the maritime commission. He did not indicate what the commission's reaction was. The United States Lines applied for permission to transfer to Panamanian registry nine ships which had been in trans-Atlantic service.

After one member of the commission had said yesterday that the transfer had been approved, the full commission issued after a late night session a statement saying it was deferring final action, pending an investigation of all the facts.

At his press conference, Hull recalled that yesterday he had told the maritime commission there was no question of foreign policy involved in the transfer, but that his opinion was given in the absence of virtually any of the facts.

Would Fly Panama Flag

The secretary of state added that as some of the facts pertaining to the application of the United States Lines for transfer of registry had since come to him, he did not feel favorably impressed with them.

The ships consist of all but two of those used in trans-Atlantic service by the United States Lines. If the application is approved, they would be transferred to a Panamanian corporation, would fly the Panama flag, and would have no American citizens in their crews.

"The proposed transfer would divorce the ships involved from any and all protection afforded by the United States flag," said a commission statement.

"Any favorable action would be taken by the maritime commission only upon the definite understanding that operations of the vessels in question can in no way involve the rights of diplomatic protection the basis of any claim put forward by the United States or be made by the government of the United States."

Couldn't Carry Americans

The commission explained that the ships could not carry any Americans either as passengers or crew in the combat areas defined by President Roosevelt. These extend eastward from mid-Atlantic around the British Isles and all western Europe from Gergen, Norway, to northern Spain.

Should the ships ever be returned to United States registry, the commission added, they could not enter coastwise or intercoastal service.

All the craft, built during or just after the World war, are owned outright by the United States Lines.

The United States Lines' two largest ships—the Manhattan and the Washington—will remain under the American flag.

State Supreme Court Affirms Mrs. Monsted's $29,144 Claim Against William Hatten Estate

Madison—(AP)—The state supreme court affirmed today a $29,144 claim of Mrs. Beatrice E. Monsted of New London against the estate of the late William H. Hatten, pioneer lumberman who died at his New London home in 1937 leaving property valued at around $3,000,000, but no will.

The decision upheld the findings of Judge A. M. Scheller of Waupaca county who allowed Mrs. Monsted's claim for $25,000 on a note and the additional sum for costs and attorney fees.

Mrs. Monsted was the wife of a New London doctor who died about seven years ago. Hatten, a bachelor, had for many years been a frequent visitor at the Monsted home and according to the testimony virtually had made it his home.

Mrs. Monsted testified that several months before his death Hatten gave her the note to repay her for all the family had done for him.

Fowler in Dissent

The supreme court was divided in its decision. Six justices held the claim was valid but Justice Chester A. Fowler, in a dissent, said Mrs. Monsted at most was entitled to the cost of meals Hatten had taken at the house and the use he made of the family automobile.

The tribunal has before it another case against the estate but passed it today without decision. It involves a demand by William H Dick, of Memphis, Tenn., and four others for $170,059 based on obligations Hatten was alleged to have incurred while part owner of the Tallahatchie Lumber company. This claim had been disallowed by Judge Schneller.

Judge Quits Post At Kansas City

Charges of Misappropriating County Funds Are Dismissed

Kansas City — (AP) — David E. Long, presiding judge to the Jackson county court and key Tom Pendergast machine lieutenant at the courthouse, resigned today.

The county court is an administrative body. Long was indicted by a county grand jury on charges of misappropriating funds to improve a building owned by his sons. He has been tried three times on counts in the indictment, one jury acquitting him, the others being unable to agree. Another trial was pending.

The resignation was the first development to bear on the Pendergast Democratic machine in the county since a federal-state drive struck the organization shattering blows early this year. Many Pendergast key men have lost out in the city and Boss Pendergast now is in the federal penitentiary serving 15 months for income tax evasion.

State Attorney General Roy McKittrick announced the Long resignation in court and moved for dismissal of charges against the judge.

Circuit Judge Buzard, acting on McKittrick's recommendations, dismissed the charges against both Long and his aid, J. W. Hostetter, former county court judge.

'Hypnotic' Kisser Is Headed for Prison

San Francisco—(AP)— Jesse Ray Mowery, 43, whose two wives said he kissed with "hypnotic" power, was headed for Folsom prison today to serve two consecutive terms of from one to ten years for grand theft.

He was convicted of stealing $3,000 from Mrs. Vivian Korth, 32, of Martinez, and $2,000 from Mrs. Laura Alvina Smith, 41, of San Francisco, each of whom he wed about two years ago He was sentenced yesterday.

The women testified his kisses had a strangely narcotic effect. A bigamy charge against Mowery was dropped.

Minnesota Official Awaits 'Truck War' Developments; Confers With Patrol Heads

St. Paul —(AP)— Secretary of State Mike Holm adopted "a watchful waiting" attitude in the Minnesota-Wisconsin "truck war" today after conferences with state highway patrol officials.

Declaring "matters stand just as they always have," Holm refused to recognize the threat of George Rickemann, Wisconsin motor vehicle commissioner at Madison, that all Minnesota trucks hitherto traveling license free in that state under a reciprocity agreement would be stopped.

Holm, professing exasperation with the Wisconsin move, said an investigation had convinced him that no Wisconsin trucks operating under the agreement were stopped in Minnesota as charged by Rickemann.

He said that Captain Frank Corcoran of the Minnesota highway patrol, had assured him that only the routine enforcement of the trucking-for-hire laws was being made with no prejudice to Wisconsin truckers.

J. P. Pengtson, assistant secretary of state, declared.

"Our law is very specific and it grants us more reciprocity privileges than does the Wisconsin law. For many months we have endeavored to obtain the limitation of the Wisconsin law from so we can organize our regulations accordingly. We have had no success."

If "the war" developed as Rickemann threatened, Holm said, Minnesota would demand an explanation of several arrests of truckers in Wisconsin. There will likely be retaliatory action against Wisconsin truckers hitherto hauling free in Minnesota.

Madison —(AP)— George Rickemann, commissioner of the Wisconsin motor vehicle department, said today he was determined to enforce a ruling that Minnesota truck owners must carry Wisconsin license plates if they operate in Wisconsin

"This decision," he said, "is based on positive knowledge that Wisconsin truck owners have been forced to buy Minnesota licenses."

Clausen Critical Of New Dealers' Spending Policy

Forum Speaker Says Exceeding Income Is Dangerous Practice

The American government is steering straight into economic difficulties because it is spending more money than it is making, Fred H. Clausen, Horicon, president of the Van Brundt Manufacturing company and a past vice president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said in a talk before 150 members of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce and the city's service clubs at noon yesterday in the Conway hotel.

The speaker at the first forum meeting of the year sponsored by the Appleton chamber, Clausen said that the "use of the taxing power to increase prosperity by pump priming" is ill advised and that "we need to repair the pump, not prime it, and put somebody at the handle that knows how to manipulate it."

He criticized the "practice of aids from higher units of government to lower units" as creating "loose and lax thinking among business men" and declared that municipalities have become so accustomed to this aid that they wage merry races to see who will get the most.

Of the rush to obtain "their share" of relief and PWA funds, communities are headed for plenty of trouble, Clausen said. Private industry alone can bring the national

Report British Ships And Polish Destroyers Fight Off Nazi Planes

London —(AP)— The admiralty said tonight light British ships aided by Polish destroyers had fought off an attack by German airplanes in the North sea without suffering damage. A communique stated:

"This morning in the southern part of the North sea certain of our light forces, including two Polish destroyers, were in action with German aircraft.

"No damage was done to any ship. Enemies casualties are not known."

CHASED BY U-BOAT

Thomaston, Maine —(AP)— Mackay Radio reported receipt today of a general wireless message from the British passenger liner Mataroa in mid-Atlantic which said the ship had been "chased by a submarine of unknown nationality."

The submarine "disappeared or submerged," the message said. The Mataroa is a 12,39[illegible]-ton vessel of Southampton registry.

Britain Accused in Reich of Supplying Poison Gas to Poles

New York — (AP) — Propaganda pamphlets charging that Great Britain supplied Poles with poison gas used against German soldiers last September have been mailed from Berlin to thousands of residents in several American cities.

Pamphlets were received in Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Newark and a number of other New Jersey communities.

The Newark office of the federal bureau of investigation acknowledged it had been informed of the propaganda flood but refused to comment.

The Philadelphia Inquirer said it had learned the FBI was seeking a "prominent Philadelphain" for questioning concerning mailing lists believed supplied to the German government for propaganda purposes.

New York city postal officials said a shipment of the letters had arrived Saturday aboard the Italian liner Vulcania but that none apparently were distributed in New York.

Hearing on Gruszka's Statement Is Delayed

Madison—(AP)—A John Doe hearing to investigate a statement by Assemblyman Anthony Gruszka (P) Mosinee, that he was offered $200 by a lobbyist for his vote on a bill to reorganize the public service commission was postponed indefinitely in superior court today.

District Attorney Norris E. Maloney said that despite assurance from Gruszka that he would be ready to appear before Judge Roy H. Proctor this morning, officers in Milwaukee and Madison had not been able to serve a subpena.

Heavy Voting as Ohio Ballots on Pension Proposal

Today's Elections Fail to Offer Clear Test of National Issues

Cleveland—(AP)—Heavy voting today indicated a near record total for an off-year as Ohio balloted on a proposed old age pension plan to guarantee $50 monthly to single persons and $80 a month to couples over 60.

The secretary of state's office predicted a total vote of 2,225,000. The record balloting in a non-presidential year stands at 2,282,401 for 1933 when prohibition was repealed.

Large cities and rural districts alike had early rushes to the voting booths. Generally fair and cool weather helped.

By the Associated Press

Scattered city and state elections offered no clear-cut test on national issues today, but referenda on questions ranging from old-age pensions to pari-mutuel betting robbed the "off-year" balloting of its usual lethargy.

Interest centered largely on old age pension proposals in California and Ohio. The California plan would give up to $30 every Thursday to unemployed persons over 50, under a law similar to one rejected there last year. Payments would be made in state script redeemable after a year, provided a 2-cent stamp tax was attached every week.

The Ohio plan has been advocated by Herbert S. Bigelow, Cincinnati clergyman. It calls for pensions, supplementing other income, to provide total payments of $50 a month to retired single persons over 60 and $80 monthly to couples. A state income tax and a levy on high-priced real estate would finance it.

Roosevelts in New York

A referendum on sanctioning pari-mutuel betting at race tracks was the only statewide question before New York voters. President and Mrs. Roosevelt were at their Hyde Park, N. Y., home to vote in an effort to dislodge some of the local Republican office holders.

Prohibition was an issue in Indiana, where towns of less than 3,000 population were electing town officials. Dry forces concentrated on candidates pledged to oppose issuance of local liquor licenses.

One of the few contests bearing even remotely on President Roosevelt's policies was in Kentucky where Governor Keen Johnson, Democrat who succeeded Governor A. B. Chandler when the latter resigned to be appointed to the senate, sought election to the office he now holds. His Republican opponent, Circuit Judge King Swope, criticized the national administration in his campaign.

The only other gubernatorial election was in Mississippi, where Paul B. Johnson, Democrat, was unopposed.

Philadelphia Race

National affairs were mentioned also in Philadelphia's mayoral race. Robert C. White, Democrat, was opposed by Robert E. Lambertson, Republican, who argued that a Democratic victory would diminish the national prestige of the Republican party.

Detroit's mayoral contest involved disputed claims of labor support. Edward Jeffries, Jr., president of the city council, sought to defeat Mayor Richard Reading, who was elected two years ago over the opposition of the CIO.

The non-partisan race for mayor in Cleveland lay between Mayor Harold H. Burton and John E. O'Donnell.

San Francisco voters had eight candidates from whom to choose a mayor. Angelo J. Rossi, the incumbent, sought a third four-year term; his principal opponent was Franck R. Havenner, Democratic representative in congress.

Agricultural Council Names New Directors

Directors of the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture have been announced. Among those elected are Herbert Tubbs, of the Progressive Farmers of Wisconsin, Seymour; Amos Paige, Neenah, of the Fox River Valley Milk Producers association; and Herman Ihde, route 2, Neenah, of the Wisconsin State Grange.

Deeds Office Receipts Total $815 in October

October receipts in the office of Stephen M. Peeters, Outagamie county register of deeds, amounted to $815.40 last month as compared with $769.45 in October of last year. A total of 692 fillings and 528 recordings were reported last month as against 497 and 575, respectively, in October 1938.

Firemen were called to the 1400 block on E. John street at 8:15 last night to put out a fire in leaves. Brooms were used to extinguish the blaze.

CONVICTS RETURNED AFTER FLEEING THIS MICHIGAN PRISON

Guards are shown descending from the roof of the Southern Michigan state prison at Jackson after six convicts, who attempted to escape, were back in custody. The felons overpowered a guard in the tower at the left and reached the ground on a ladder of rope and broken pipe. A guard was killed during the break. Three of the convicts got outside the walls in a guard's car but were captured after a chase of a mile and a half.

Daesn't Want to be Candidate but Keep His Name Off Ballot

Nuangola, Pa.—(AP)—William A. Lewis says if he is elected to borough council today he'll resign immediately.

Lewis, a Republican nominee, complained to the county election board that he didn't even win the nomination, but was informed there was no time to change the ballot.

Swoyerville, Pa.—John Grecula was busy yesterday campaigning for borough constable, but today he's not a candidate. A last-minute re-check of primary votes showed he had been credited with 10 votes too many. That gave the nomination to his opponent.

Philadelphia — Today's election may show whether type-size has anything to do with political successes. A council candidate complained that his name on the ballot was printed smaller than the others. Officials said it was too long for the alloted space.

Junction, Utah — Seething last spring with political strife and talk of recall, Junction holds its municipal election today. But there are no candidates. A quorum failed to appear at a nominating meeting.

Six Convicts Face Charge of Murder

Arraignment Follows Slaying of Guard in Attempted Escape

Jackson, Mich.— (AP)— Six long-term convicts were arraigned late yesterday at the southern Michigan prison on charges of first degree murder in the slaying of inspector of guards Fred Boucher, 54, Sunday while attempting to escape from the prison.

All six asked examination which was set for 2 p. m., Nov. 15 at the prison. The men were brought into the warden's outer office for the arraignment in single file with individual guards. Other guards were in the lobby and in front of the prison.

Municipal Judge Arthur W. Wiggins of Jackson went to the prison to conduct the arraignment.

The arraignment followed an inquest, also held at the prison, in which a jury of Jackson businessment brought in a verdict that Boucher "met his death from wounds from shot of a gun fired by Sam Sawaya, 26, in conspiracy with others to escape from southern Michigan prison."

Proscutor Owen Dudley advised the jury before the verdict was brought in that under Michigan law a death caused by the commission of a felony is first degree murder and that anyone involved in the commission of that felony is equally guilty with the person accused.

Arraigned with Sawaya were George Bodie, 28, Malcolm Stokes, 29, Paul Lawman, 33, John L. Sullivan, 35, and Leo Thifault, 24, all recaptured shortly after the break.

TALKS ON TECHNOCRACY

A lecture on the general aims of Technocracy was given by Marvin Wasserbach, director of the Appleton unit of Technocracy, Inc., at a meeting last night at the Wettengel building. Following the talk was a discussion of current events.

'Black List' Law Cannot be Broken 'Unknowingly,' Ruling

Madison —(AP)— A tavernkeeper is not responsible under the "blacklist" statute for selling liquor to a posted person unless he violates the law knowingly, the supreme court ruled today.

In a 6 to 1 decision the court affirmed Circuit Judge Jesse Earle in dismissing a damage action brought against a Jefferson county tavern owner. The dissent was filed by Justice Oscar Fritz.

Mrs. Viola Steinel, who lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Meyer at Lake Mills, had been placed on the official "blacklist" in taverns of Jefferson county, which were forbidden to sell her any liquor.

On the night of May 2, 1938, according to testimony in the suit filed with Judge Earle, she entered a tavern in Jefferson township, owned by Mary Klitz, and was served drinks. She was accompanied by two men and remained at the tavern for about three hours.

While walking along a highway, after she left the place, she was struck by an automobile and killed.

Her parents and Edna Crist, as guardian of Mrs. Steinel's minor daughter, sued the tavernkeeper and her bondsmen for $10,000, charging Mrs. Steinel became intoxicated in the tavern and that this was indirectly the cause of her death.

Judge Earle dismissed the case on the ground that Mrs. Steinel was not known in the Klitz tavern, had never been in there before, and apparently was sober when she entered. He said the state law prohibited selling liquor "knowingly" to a blacklisted person was so specific in its language that the Klitz tavern, under the circumstance had not violated it.

Utility Officers Hear Discussion Of Wartime Rates

Schedule Fluctuating With Changing Costs Is Advocated

Milwaukee —(AP)— A wartime rate schedule for utilities, fluctuating automatically according to changing cost conditions, was advocated last night by C. W. Kellogg of New York, president of the Edison Electric Institute, national trade organization of the electrical industry.

Kellogg submitted the plan to the electric section of the Wisconsin Utilities association in its annual banquet meeting, attended by 500.

Kellogg said the rate changes would be worked out in advance to save long and costly hearings in war time. They would, he said, assure continuous and reliable service to industry, home and farm, he added:

"With four benchmarks, fuel, payroll, taxes and retirement appropriations in unit cost established, and the percentage of the gross earnings represented by each similarly agreed upon, it should be possible to agree beforehand between the commissions and utilities on the extent which rates should be raised or lowered to correspond with variations from the four benchmark levels."

Coal Costs Go Up

He advised that rates be determined once every six months. He declared that a similar plan was used in France during the first world war. He cited statistics showing coal costs increased 172 per cent in this country during the World war.

F. W. Durfee, chief of the agricultural engineering department of the University of Wisconsin, discussing 15 years of rural electrification programs, said Wissconsin "has gone a long way and today nearly one-half of all farms have electrical service."

Farmers still would like more labor saving devices, Durfee said, and illustrated with the story of a Whitewater farmer who saved $100 monthly through use of his power feed grinder.

H. A. Carlberg, Green Bay, offered recommendations for using a service record system to evaluate service and provide a basis for an efficient and economical program. Other speakers included C. T. Bremicker of Eau Claire, and Hans W. Schmidt, supervisor of school buildings for the state department of public instruction, Madison.

General Motors Denies Coercion

Not Put Under Compulsion, West Coast Dealers Testify

South Bend, Ind. —(AP)— A denial that General Motors Corporation coerced west coast dealers into financing instalment automobile sales with the General Motor Acceptance Corporation today was before a federal jury trying the firms on anti-trust charges.

General Motor Corporation, GMAC, two other GMC subsidiaries and 17 officials are accused of a conspiracy to compel dealers to use factory - controlled finance companies, in restraint of trade.

Government witnesses have testified that John J. Raskob, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., and other GM officials told dealers at a conference in Los Angeles 14 years ago that they must give their time paper to GMAC.

Yesterday, Roy B. Campbell of San Diego, Gordon Warren of Hollywood and C. S. Mead and Harold W. Tuttle of Los Angeles said they attended the conference as dealers but were not put under any compulsion to use GMAC.

However, Campbell and Warren added that they were given to understand they must use the same interest rates as GMAC if they financed their own sales.

Roy W. Hill of Dallas, Tex., and G. I. Smith of Minneapolis, regional Chevrolet managers, told the jury Fred Emick, who had the Oak Park, Ill., franchise, lost it because he lacked capital and did little business.

Emick, as a government witness, had said the dealership was taken from him because he would not give all his financing business to GMAC.

Emick testified Hill told him he must let the credit firm have at least half his time paper. Hill denied he ever made this statement.

Menominee Man Is Florists' President

Milwaukee— (AP)— The Wisconsin and upper Michigan Florists' association late yesterday elected Louis Laursen of Menominee, Mich., as president. He succeeds Sydney Dale of Houghton, Mich.

Herbert Cloutc, Fort Atkinson, was named vice president; Eugene Oestreicher, Milwaukee, treasurer; Carl Billman, Sheboygan, director and Carl Menger, Milwaukee, executive secretary.

The annual banquet was held last night, 350 attending. Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman was toastmaster.

James Sykora, Chicago, told members that the florists who are making money are those "who are keeping abreast of the times" with latest ideas in service and merchandizing.

Mrs. June Hamilton Rhodes, New York, discussed the use of flowers in designing and decorating women's clothes.

School Children Seek Clues in Woman's Death

Mt. Clemens, Mich.— (AP)— A searching party of more than 100 school children aided police today in combing wooded areas near the home where Mrs. Herbert Patterson, wife of a Detroit automotive engineer, was stabbed to death Oct. 26.

Search of the area surrounding the Patterson home in suburban St. Clair shores yesterday revealed two articles of clothing, all bloodstained.

The discovery, made by two eight-year-old boys, spurred the search for the knife used in the slaying, believed to be a butcher knife taken from the kitchen of the Patterson home.

Additional witnesses were called today by the coroner's jury hearing evidence in the case.

And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of His Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father."

Capital Party Causes Furore

Soviet Attempt to Celebrate May Draw Numerous Refusals

Washington —(AP)— Not since the British embassy's royal garden fete has a capital party created such a furore as today's 21st anniversary celebration of the Russian revolution at the Soviet embassy.

Last June, officials and their wives who were not invited to greet the British monarchs fumed over the omission. Today, congressmen and diplomats invited to the Soviet reception worried over whether they should attend.

As the party hour of 4 p. m. (C. S. T.) drew near, capital social scouts were divided on the function's prospects. Some predicted that few persons of importance would attend.

The 1,000 invitations for the affair went out on the heels of Soviet Premier Molotoff's recent speech criticizing President Roosevelt for "intervening" in Russia's negotiations with Finland.

Immediately some senators and house members let it be known that they had sent regrets for the Soviet party, for which the host is Dmitri S. Chuvakhin, charge d' affaires in the absence of Ambassador Oumansky, now enroute here from Russia.

Rep. May (D-Ky) announced that he preferred to do his celebrating on the fourth of July.

German Seamen Moved To Norwegian Fortress

Bergen— (AP)— Seventeen German seamen, the erstwhile prize crew of the American freighter City of Flint, were removed from the minelayer Olav Trygvason today to be taken to the fortress at Kongsvinger, near the Swedish border.

The Germans, held when Norway returned the City of Flint to her American crew, were expected to leave tonight's train for the trip across southern Norway.

An eighteenth German originally in the prize crew became ill and was left at Murmansk, soviet Russian port at which the Flint stopped after her capture Oct. 9 by a German raider.

The American crew, granted no shore leave, was busy putting the ship in order.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, United States minister to Norway, and Maurice P. Dunlap, consul at Bergen, who visited the ship yesterday, declined to discuss disposition of the cargo or departure plans.

James Blaine Skidmore (above), 56-year-old farmer, was held in Antigo, Wis., on a warrant charging him with slaying Orville Nass, 21, lumberjack friend of Skidmore's daughter, it was reported by Sheriff Elmer Frey.

Sees Television As Big Stimulant

Would Aid Employment And Benefit Many Branches of Industry

Chicago —(AP)— U. A. Sanabria, chief of staff of the American Television Institute, asserted today that the introduction of television as a popular entertainment medium would be the nation's greatest prosperity stimulant.

Once established, he said in an interview, the television industry would "easily employ 1,000,000 men directly and take care of 5,000,000 indirectly," and through its ramifications bestow benefits upon many other industries.

"Some 2,000 television stations," he continued, "undoubtedly would be needed to serve the larger population centers, which take up at least half of the country. Each of these stations would be a potential place of employment for 30 men and that's taking into account only the engineering talent. The performing talent would exceed the engineering personnel.

"I am convinced that the motion picture industry as a whole will receive an enormous growth through television; notwithstanding that individual movie exhibitors over the country might suffer at first. In the full functioning of television many more films will be required.

"The raw material industries, fabricators, and those engaged in the various manufacturing operations all would be helped."

Stolen Mail Is Found in Ditch

Pouches Taken at Beloit Rifled; Securities, Money Missing

Beloit—(AP)—A little damp but still in good condition, five pouches of mail stolen in a robbery here June 7 were being distributed today.

Superintendent of Mails W. R. Anthony disclosed the mail had been recovered Thursday in a roadside thicket west of Beloit where it apparently had been tossed by the bandits.

Anthony said that ordinary first class letters were unopened, but that three sacks of registered mail had been opened and apparently some money had been taken. Letters containing valuable papers, however, were discarded after being slit open.

In Chicago, postal inspector Cecil R. Grant reported that little if any currency had been in the mail.

"The pouches," Gant said, "contained some bonds and securities, some of which apparently were burned." He predicted that most of the securities could be replaced, but said he could give no accurate estimate of their value.

The mail was taken from a truck in front of the North Western railroad baggage platform while the driver was inside the building. Postal officials believed the robbers were after a payroll shipment to the Beloit Fairbanks-Morse plant. The payroll, however, was not sent that day.

M. U. Students Given Thanksgiving Choice

Milwaukee— (AP)— The academic council of Marquette university decided yesterday that no classes would be held on Nov. 23 and that in addition there would be a holiday period from Nov. 29 to Dec. 4, in effect giving students their choice of Thanksgiving dates.

The Rev. Raphael J. McCarthy, president of the university, said the action was taken to conform with the school calendar. Observing the earlier Thanksgiving date with a holiday period would disrupt the school schedule, he said.

Moscow Begins Another Drive To Convert European Nations To Doctrines of Communism

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(AP)—Communist international headquarters in Moscow appears to have decided that this is the appointed hour to strike again for Europe's conversion to the red-flag doctrines.

This move had been expected, but a formal effort hadn't been looked for until the war had been given a chance to crack morale in the belligerent countries.

The appeal by the international (comintern) to the workers of Britain and France to "go against those who favor continuation of imperalistic war" fits perfectly, strange though it seem, with what is understood generally to be that organization's program for world revolution.

I'm afraid we must take the liberty of interpreting this as a decidedly left-handed way to reach war's end.

Study Operations

The seeming paradox of a call for peace meaning a call for revolt ceases to be a contradiction, however, when the comintern operations are studied. Here is the story as we know it:

When the soviets were born out of the Bolshevist revolution in Russia, they immediately created the international, or comintern, as the "general staff of the world revolution."

It was hoped that a general revolt of the masses in all countries could be brought about as the result of conditions resulting from the World war. That was the milk the infant soviets got their start on.

The Bolshevists strained every nerve to swing the world with them. They even sold imperial crown-jewels and other priceless relics and used for work abroad money which they desperately needed at home.

Some revolutions indeed were set going, but the scheme as a whole failed. However, the comintern kept its fires burning.

When Stalin came to power in 1924 he decided on a radical change in policy. His program was to make soviet Russia a mighty power first, and let the world revolution wait until a favorable opportunity arose. This he proceeded to put into effect.

Foresaw Strife

Then along in 1935 began the period of "What's yours is mine" in Europe and the Far East. The far-sighted Stalin foresaw a period of strife approaching, and the comintern executives decided that this would give them the opportunity they needed.

It was determined to drop the slogan of "world revolution" and substitute that of "peace."

The idea was to split the forces of peace and war in the various disturbed countries against each other in an effort to cause civil strife.

Out of this amazing situation would come the equivalent of the world revolution, and communism would be extended to the four corners of the earth.

This historical background accords with the appeal to the British and French workers. This is, of course, in its essence an appeal for revolt.

Those who are making what the manifesto characterizes as "imperialistic" war in England and France are the governments of those countries. It is accepted generally that to "go against" one's government when it is at war is an act of sedition.

Europe at war is the field for which the communists have been waiting. They believe it will provide fertile soil for the seed of communism.

Soviet Premier Molotoff in a speech yesterday summed up the Russian viewpoints succinctly and graphically. He asserted that half the world is at war because of conflict in Europe, and declared the capitalist system is sure to fall now.

See Big Drive

The workers and peasants, added Molotoff, no longer will put up with capitalists, especially those who want to fight under the pretext of "defense of democracy."

The smart manner in which Stalin annexed eastern Poland and sovietized it, and then took control of the Baltic states, was a fair indication of the trend of affairs. Observers generally conculuded that the time for another big communistic drive in Europe was approaching.

There was no indication, however that this would come so soon. Apparently the trend of affairs has been such that the comintern felt it wise to move immediately. The twenty-second anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution has given the opportunity for the attack on capitalism and the manifesto.

Hopping the Atlantic from Europe, the United States also appears to look like pretty fertile ground to Earl Browder, secretary of the communist party in this country, who has received encouragement from Moscow.

His Boston speech calling on his followers to achieve socialism here contained the interesting declaration that America "despite the political backwardness as yet of our working class, is technically, objectively, the country which is most ripe, the most prepared for a quick transition to socialism, for which it lacks only the understanding and the will of the masses to that goal."

Seek Release of Chilton Woman

Pardon Board Hears Plea For Clemency for Mrs. Kiesner

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—A second appeal for clemency today had been filed with Governor Heil on behalf of Mrs. Alice Kiesner, route 1, Hilbert, convicted last year of performing an abortion in Chilton.

The petition will be heard by the governor's pardon board Wednesday at the capitol, it was announced. The appeal was filed by Mrs. Vern Manderscheld of Hilbert, daughter of the imprisoned woman.

Mrs. Kiesner was sent to the women's prison at Taycheedah in March of last year, after sentencing by Judge Henry P. Hughes of Calumet county to a term of four to five years for second degree manslaughter.

A practical nurse before her conviction, Mrs. Kiesner was cited by prison officials as having made a good record at the institution.

Mrs. Kiesner was convicted of performing an abortion which resulted in the death of the child. The governor has now been informed that her husband is ill and needs her care.

Among the correspondence in the official file of the case is a recommendation to Governor Heil by a Menasha clergyman that the pardon be granted.

A previous application, heard by the pardon board about six months ago, has been denied, records show.

Public Service Body Loses in Superior Utility Sale Case

Madison—(AP)—The supreme court today ruled that the public service commission acted illegally when it reopened the Superior utility acquisition case in January, 1938, and subsequently reduced the purchase price.

The Tribunal upheld a previous ruling by Judge S. E. Smalley in Dane county circuit court. The decision was a victory for the Superior Water, Light and Power company.

The commission, on Aug. 13, 1937 had found that the city of Superior could purchase the utility for $4,625,000 and entered its final order. City Councilman John Green asked the circuit court here to review the findings.

Although the city and the utility filed demurrers and the commisson asked for judgment, the circuit court in December, 1937 overruled contentions that it had no jurisdiction and ordered the case heard on its merits.

While the action was still pending the commission, on Jan. 13, 1938 served notice on the parties it planned to reopen the question of valuation, indicating at the time it did so to determine whether the defunct B. E. Buckman Investment company of Madison had any connections with the underwriting.

Over protests of the utility the commission did reopen the proceedings on Jan. 28 and later reduced the purchase price to $4,050,000, based upon a different consideration of property.

Waukesha Woman, Errand Girl for Mrs. Lincoln, Dies

Waukesha—(AP)— Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Mrs. Lydia J. Dwinnell, 76, who as a girl ran errands for the wife of Abraham Lincoln.

Mrs. Dwinnell, a lifetime Waukesha resident, often recalled the summer of 1872 when Mrs. Lincoln came to Waukesha, then known as the "Saratoga of the west" because of its springs and watering places, and called by its earlier name of Prairieville.

Mrs. Lincoln boarded across the street from the Andrew Fletchers, Mrs. Dwinnell's parents. Mrs. Dwinnell died Saturday of heart disease.

Minnesota to Retaliate In Truck License War

Minneapolis—(AP)—Informed of a warning that Wisconsin authorities would begin arrests of Minnesota truck drivers entering Wisconsin without license plates for that state, W. L. Roust, in charge of licenses in this area, said Minnesota would probably retaliate.

The subject will be discussed today with J. P. Bengtson, assistant secretary of state, Roust said. He added that so far as he knew there had been no arrests of Wisconsin truckers in the Minneapolis area, and said he did not know what incident precipitated the Wisconsin stand.

Mrs. G. A. Gilbert, 1416 N. Superior street, has returned from St. Elizabeth hospital, where she underwent an operation two weeks ago.

Roosevelt Faces Job of Selecting Strategy for '40

Must Lay Lines for Program Before January Session, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — The eight weeks' breathing spell which President Roosevelt and the executive branch of the government will have at their disposal between now and the time the January session of congress reconvenes affords an opportunity to lay the lines for the legislative and political program of 1940.

Lawrence

As is customary, the Republicans, being the minority party, can wait till the Democratic plans are presented and then can let loose their barrage of criticism or counter-attack. Heretofore, the administration has not been content to stay on the defensive, but has believed that the best defense is a strong offense. Will those tactics be continued?

The dilemma facing the president as leader of his party is a complex one irrespective of whether he is going to be a candidate for a third term. The broad strategy has to be worked out no matter who the nominee may be, for, to a large extent, it is on the Roosevelt record that both New Deal and anti-New Deal would-be candidates will have to stand after the national convention has entrusted the party standard to the new nominee.

Up to now, the chief Republican argument has been that New Deal experimentalism knocked the confidence of the business world into a cocked hat and that business recovery has been an irregular curve, going up with the increase of "pump-priming" and going down when the financial hypodermics had exhausted their stimulus. But what shall be said of the recovery movement which set in as early as last May and was running at high speed when the European war broke out last August? Can it be said that the present recovery movement is artificial because it is derived from war purchases? Undoubtedly, the contention will be offered that America was being given large orders even before war broke out, but the total increase in exports during the summer months could hardly account for the wide movement of business

Federal Spending

It might be contended by the administration's opponents that "pump-priming" sent the business curve upward last summer because it so happens that federal expenditures during the current fiscal year exceed all peace-time records. Plainly, when the federal government is disbursing huge sums, the effects are felt immediately, though temporarily

If it be accepted that the anticipation of war or the "pump-priming" or the war orders since last September has been responsible for the rise in business, then the administration will have to accept one of these reasons as the basis for future planning Certainly, artificial prosperity challenges this or any other administration to plan a substitute when stimulants have spent their way Will the program be "lending-spending" or more of the direct "pump-priming" or a curtailment of federal expenses in anticipation of higher tax receipts?

The president, to be sure, must have his budget message ready the first week in January. He must forecast receipts and expenses for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1940 Whether he is to be in office again or not, the president who nears the end of his elected term must look ahead, and, together with congress, plan the expenses for the administration of his successor for at least six months of the new presidential term If he knew that the man following him was to be of the opposing party, the incumbent could, of course, present a drastically curtailed budget and leave his successor with the job of carrying it out. But there is always the chance that the next president may be of the same political party as the present executive and that would mean embarrassment for the new leader

Question of Program

But, apart from these pitfalls and tangles there is the broad question of what legislative program to offer—a radical or a conservative or a middle-of-the-road set of recommendations

Business has been complaining that it could not go ahead because it lacked confidence in the administration The latter now will answer that business has gone ahead and apparently has confidence even though no important changes in New Deal laws have been made. To this, opponents of the president will argue that the prosperity is temporary, derived from war, and that permanent prosperity cannot come unless the New Deal laws are further revised

If the administration itself comes forward with constructive suggestions for change, as, for instance, in the labor laws or the tax laws, this might take a good deal of wind out of the political sails of its opponents. Nobody knows at present which tack the president will take, but in the next six weeks, while the Republicans are away and congress is on a vacation, the administration has a tough job of selecting the strategy for 1940, and no small part of it must include the vital factor of who is going to be the man to lead the Democratic party in the quadrennial battle before the people.

Indiana Businessmen Want Steady, Not War Customers

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Indianapolis—Around here they've heard about the repeal of the arms embargo but it is looked upon as something remote that happened in Washington, and is not taken as meaning anything to this community. Businessmen expect no orders out of it; indeed they show considerable indifference to government orders, just as they turned down a federal offer some years ago to build a huge coliseum, Washington to put up $2 000,000 and Indianapolis $1,000,000

Raymond Clapper

Business is gaining steadily and nobody is looking for a war boom around the corner. As one businessman put it, he didn't want any government orders, either foreign or domestic, but he hoped his competitor would go after them, "to leave me free to get customers that I can keep"

Recently questionnaires were sent by the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce to 275 manufacturing concerns, asking if they were interested in government orders and if so in what lines. Only 43 replied. Ten of them said they definitely were not interested. In the 33 others were only three or four sizeable concerns There is a general attitude among businessmen here that government business is not worth the trouble, requires too much time-consuming red tape and troublesome inspections.

In Indianapolis the chief reflex of disturbed world conditions is the new Allison engineering plant, a $6,000.000 job by General Motors for the exclusive production of the new "Allison engine" for the war department air expansion program. This began last spring, long before the European war started, and is just now going into production of the new secret-design 12-cylinder engine for fast pursuit and interceptor planes. This new engine breaks away from the air-cooled radial type which has been so widely criticized. It is liquid-cooled and streamlined.

Specifications are secret but the Allison engine is understood to be the most powerful for light planes, comparable in its precision work with the Rolls-Royce engine, with 10,000 to 12,000 horsepower at takeoff. It is considerably beyond the capacity of existing propellors, where stronger alloys are needed to keep pace with engine development. The design was developed in cooperation with the war department, can be manufactured only for this government, and would be available to the allies only with official permission from Washington. Employes are fingerprinted, checked as to antecedents, and some of them had trouble producing the birth certificates which regulations require Every workman is compelled to sign a copy of the espionage act. Even salesmen entering the plant are watched.

Airplane Engine Plant Is Main Contribution

This plant is employing about 800 mechanics and draftsmen. In addition to a $6,000,000 plant investment, it has on hand $18,000 000 in war department engine orders. That is the main contribution of war conditions to Indianapolis prosperity. There is some minor business. One small leather factory makes cases for maps and field glasses, and has even sold some to the Chinese army. A map published here finds both his business and his troubles on the increase, and has been driven to publishing revised maps almost in daily editions like a newspaper. The Marmon-Harrington corporation is building gigantic tractor-trucks and trailers for use by the British in building pipelines in IRAQ. These trucks have wheels five feet high and are built for desert travel.

In this division the Pennsylvania railroad has re-employed about 2000 men Indiana durable goods expanded employment more than 7 per cent and payrolls nearly 14 per cent from September to October, the state employment service finds. where a seasonal drop has been traditional

Iron and steel went up 9 per cent in employment and 30 per cent in payrolls at LaFayette These gains are well distributed and inspire more confidence than could be archieved by any war boom with its ever-present threat of collapse.

As for general confidence, one fact tells the story Indianapolis sold almost twice as many new automobiles this fall as a year ago. Let Europe have its war if it insists. Here, in what Indiana's Meredith Nicholson once called the valley of democracy, people are attending to their own business and they are bringing it out of its long, trying convalescence.

Want People to be Conscious Of Education as Well as School

(Editor's Note: This is one of a series of discussions pertaining to "Education for the American Way of Life" prepared by the Appleton Education association in observance of American Education Week.)

EDUCATION FOR HUMAN RELATIONSHIPS

Education Week is set aside once a year to make us not only school-conscious, but also education-conscious. Schools were established to concentrate effort on education, yet education comes to us from many other sources—the home, the church, the press, the movie, the radio, and the various manifestations of nature. Indeed, we would be tremendously handicapped if education took place only during school hours. Anything that impinges upon our consciousness leaves its impress. Everyone learns as long as normal life lasts.

The chief work of the school, supplemented by the work of the other educational agencies, is to select and organize, to lead and direct, to encourage and inspire in ways best suited to contribute most to the present and future welfare of the individual.

A well-rounded life is usually built around four major requirements—useful activity or a vocation; good health—mental, physical, and spiritual; pleasurable recreation; and happy human relationships. Failure in any one of these may well handicap the individual in his normal development, but failure in his human relationships, no doubt, constitutes the greatest handicap. Equipped with a useful occupation, good health, and a reasonable amount of recreation, a certain measure of success may result, but only with the addition of harmonious human relationships can the individual hope for happiness for himself or for others.

Greater emphasis, then, by all educational agencies might well be given to the study of the human relationships of the individual—his early home life and his personal contacts with his parents and the other members of his family; his membership in the school with teachers, classmates, and playmates; his place as an adult in his own home with its duties and responsibilities, his church membership, his place in the community, and his contact with and relationship toward humanity in general.

Some of the desirable attributes which should be developed by the educational processes concerned with human relationships are: the ability to establish and maintain desirable friendships, to cooperate with others in a manner that shows courtesy, self-control, and self-reliance, sportsmanship, loyalty and team work, and respect for humanity.

Educational agencies, it is true, are stressing social and human relationships as never before, and it is expedient to continue this emphasis in an effort to help the individual make adequate as well as pleasant social and economic adjustments.

Board Opens Bids For City Garbage Disposal Contract

Report Will be Submitted At Meeting of Council Tonight

Kaukauna — The board of public works opened bids for city wide garbage collection last night and is slated to report on the offers as the common council meets this evening at the municipal building. On Oct. 17 the aldermen voted to advertise for bids, climaxing discussing of the question at several previous meetings.

The council has signified it will not of necessity accept the lowest bid; the whole possibility of the services depends on whether the cost can be added to the 1940 budget without an increase in the tax rate. An ordinance has been passed controling garbage collections, and if a bid is accepted collections will begin March 1 of next year.

It is expected that aldermen will begin discussion of the 1940 budget tonight. Not until after the county board meeting this month will the city's share of county costs be known, but the councilmen are in the meanwhile seeking ways of lowering Kaukauna's expenses. Most of the city departments are expected to finish the year within their 1939 budget allotments. The relief department is the outstanding exception, a large deficit being a certainty.

Hartzheim to Resign

Alderman Al A. Hartzheim, second ward, will present his resignation tonight. Hartzheim, elected in 1938, is moving from the Second to the First ward, and, according to Wisconsin statutes, his term runs out when he moves. The mayor must appoint Hartzheim's successor, subject to the council's approval.

Hartzheim is a member of the utility commission, being the council's representative on that body, and of four council committees, to which Mayor Lewis F. Nelson is to make appointments.

The fire and police commission met last night and may place recommendations before the council tonight. In addition reports of the chief of police, relief director, city treasurer and electrical department will be received.

Posson, William Klumb, Jr., James O. Legreid, William Winge and Herman Baier.

American Legion, Kaukauna Post No. 41, will meet at 7:30 tonight at Legion hall. A social hour, including lunch and refreshments, will follow the business meeting. The current membership drive will be completed.

Women's Catholic Order of Foresters, St. Ann's court No. 226, will meet tonight at the church hall. Hostesses will be Mrs. John Heinz and Mrs. Frank Noie.

HEIFETZ PICTURE OPENS NOV. 11

Jascha Heifetz, the world's greatest violinist, makes his film bow in the stirring drama "THEY SHALL HAVE MUSIC," which starts a run at the Appleton Theatre on Saturday November 11, and brings to the screen for the first time his immortal musical genius.

The principal romantic roles are played by Andrea Leeds and Joel McCrea. This picture also marks the debut of the California Junior Symphony Orchestra, comprised entirely of boys and girls.

"Mutiny in the Big House," starring Charles Bickford and Barton MacLane, will be the companion feature.

High School Senior Class Will Stage 'Ride 'Em Cowboy'

Kaukauna — "Ride 'em Cowboy," the play to be presented by the senior class of Kaukauna High school Nov. 23, portrays adventurous life of the "wild and woolly west," in the form of a dude ranch

Rose McCoy, a charming girl in western garb, who owns the ranch, is played by Ruth Baker. For sentimental reasons she keeps her ranch, turning it into a dude hangout to make it pay. Other characters range from debutantes to bandits to make effective contrasts.

Rose uses diplomacy to get Buck Thomas and Bill "Tumble" Weed, to abandon their hopes of regular cow-punching and play nursemaid to a bunch of dudes instead. Werner Altman plays Buck, who unexpectedly takes a tumble from a horse and finds love the cure for all ailments. Jack Winn takes the part of Tumble and as a riding instructor always brings 'em back alive.

Variety of Roles

The ones who suffer from first experiences with a horse are Pearl Stoffer, a part taken by Marie Walker, and Aunt Helena Bullingslea, played by Louise Nelson. Sadness from lack of riding ability make Pearl give up hope of becoming sylphlike by this method. She is attractive and has a wealth of curls, the result being that Tumble falls hard. A natural reformer at heart, Aunt Helena is humorous when she exclaims over the "cattleboys" trying to choke a horse with a rope.

Others who have important roles in the play are Sandra Billingslea, Aunt Helena's niece, played by Virginia Strick; Sir Basil Bakingham, played by Clarence DeBruin; Joan Wilkes, a gorgeous runaway, played by Rita Belongea; Pepita, a lovely "ad" for old Mexico, played by Margaret Picard; Black Pete, a desperado of the old school, Sherman Powers, and Jim Wilkes, a menace of the new school, John Wandell.

Issues Proclamation For Education Week

Madison —(P)— Governor Hell has issued a proclamation for the observance of American Education week from Nov. 5 to 12.

The observance is sponsored by the National Education Association, the American Legion, the United States Office of Education and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

"The educational policies commission had called attention to the fact that American education enacts at this moment a role of world wide importance," the governor said. "It is pointed out that if this generation and future generations are to furnish effective resistance to the menace of dictatorship in its proposed conquest of the world—then such resistance must stem chiefly from the idealism and clarity of thinking of the American citizen.

"If schools are to help in the defense of the democratic ideal, then the purposes of the schools must be redefined in terms of that ideal, and their activities must be resolutely directed toward it. Thus, in 1939 the need for public understanding and appreciation of our schools is imperative."

Ham 'n' Eggs Chief Would Be a Tough One to Recall

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Los Angeles—The only cause that has been offered for the indorsement of the anti-strike provision and the other dictatorial clauses of the ham-'n'-eggs plans by the communistic California C.I.O., is a section which occurs along toward the end of the proposal, providing for the recall of the dictator by the usual method. For a fact, that makes it funnier, and it is likely that one of the brothers in the mutually suspicious band of promoters who dreamed up this weird disturbance inserted the recall clause as a precaution. It might be used to remind Mr. Roy Owens, the nominee for dictator, of his obligations to his partners in the ham-'n'-eggs business and curb any tendency on his part to deny them the rewards of selfless service to the cause.

Pegler

On what grounds Owens could be recalled it is difficult to conceive, however, inasmuch as another provision of the article, in plain, vigorous language, forbids any interference with the administration of the ham-'n'-eggs plan, even by the courts; another empowers him to interpret the intent and spirit of the act, subject to no review or superior authority, and still another forbids all persons to curtail any capacity to produce goods, services, conveniences or comforts.

These provisions are among the few little blurts salted away amid the ingenious confusion of the counterfeiting plan which are couched in plain and vigorous language, and they do not occur in the sequence in which I have arranged them, but are deliberately scattered and mixed so as to conceal their relationship. Strung together, however, they spell just what they seem to spell, and, in spelling them out it is important to remember that the capacity to produce goods, services, conveniences or comforts is personal in the case of each individual. Under his powers, Brother Owens obviously might decide that his associates — the brothers Allen, for instance—were unlawfully curtailing their own capacity to produce little rocks out of big ones, and, by the words of their own amendment, they would have no case for recall against him on that score.

Boundless Discretion Would Have No Redress

On the contrary, Brother Owens would be doing no more than his duty under the "command" of the people of California and the brothers Allen, who are toiling so loyally to clothe him with these powers, and this boundless discretion would have no redress short of personal revolution, which always causes ill health or worse in the revolutionary order under dictatorial government.

The Communist California C.I.O., however, which indorsed tthe anti-strike and other dictatorial proposals in obedience to the party line, forbids itself the comfort of the recall as an exception to anti-labor measures. If Brother Owens should forbid and suppress a strike of C.I.O. Longshoremen or pickers of the grapes of wrath, he would only be doing the very thing that the C.I.O. has approved in its indorsement of the plan as a whole. The Communists could not ask his recall on such gronds, for they have said that they believe it would be a good thing to empower one man to suppress strikes. That power is plainly provided in the clause against the curtailment of production and so forth, and the C.I.O. has plainly approved the idea.

The Communists could not have overlooked the meaning of this provision, for they are very bright at reading the plain meanings of all sorts of proposals and detecting hidden meanings, too.

C.I.O. Couldn't Say Much About Striking

For that matter, under dictatorial government, the Communists, including those of the California C.I.O., seriously disapprove of strikes, a fact that is borne out by reference to the news from Russia, which has revealed no strike since the workers were liberated. It is only under capitalism that the workers enjoy the right to strike and the Communists are not capitalists. Therefore, under Brother Owens of the Ham-'n'-eggs plan, if he should do his stuff thoroughly and avoid weakness in his administration the California C.I.O. would have no reason to ask his recall. On the contrary they would be obliged to resist any movement to recall him.

Therefore, so long as Brother Owens behaves himself, , putting down strikes with a firm hand driving the longshoremen back to their work and stretching the hours of toil in all lines to the limit of the productive capacity of the people, he would be carrying out the plan which the Communistic California C.I.O. has solemnly decided to support. He might be recalled for misconduct, if any conduct could be shown in a man with such vast authority, but not for putting down a strike of the C.I.O.—that would not be misconduct. The C.I.O. would have to give him a cheer for that, according to the terms of its own commitment and the ham-'n'-eggs amendment.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't endure it first and cure it afterward. Find out what's giving you the trouble.

Chances are it's simple if you eat the super-refined foods most people do: meat, white bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, you should eat a natural "bulk" producing food—such a one as the crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. All-Bran is the ounce of prevention that's worth a pound of emergency relief. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Clausen Critical Of New Dealers' Spending Policy

income back to its former levels, but not if shackled by the deficits that are being accumulated now, the former president of the Wisconsin Manufacturers association stated.

The government will spend between 9½ and 10 billion dollars this year, Clausen said, thereby adding another four billion dollars to the national debt. Governmental receipts are growing, but not fast enough. They were about 6½ billion last year, but they are still four billion short of expeditures. One billion dollars a year is going for interest.

Democratic Leaders Concerned

"I'm not talking in a partisan manner," the forum speaker declared. "There are many leading Democratic senators who agree that you can't go on with this business of spending more than you earn."

He denounced government competition with private industry as a "two-edged sword that cuts down the ability of industry to pay taxes and at the same time, increases the taxes."

Clausen said that since 1931, the books of the state of Wisconsin have been out of balance and that it is now "getting near the bottom of the bin."

The Horicon industrialist criticized "government paternalism" as giving people the attitude that the government owes them a living. "I want to see people well taken care of, but we may be unable to do it before long unless this spending is curtailed. Private industry is the best assurance of security for the people."

Clausen said that congress has surrendered its "right to say what money shall be used and where it shall go" and emphatically criticized the undistributed profits tax. In this, he said, "which divorced common sense from taxation legislation", lay the principal reason for industry's failure to move upward in 1937.

Clausen was introduced by Walter K. Miller, chairman of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce forum committee.

Conservation Congress in Battle to Change Order

Brillion — Members of the Conservation Congress of Districts 6 and 7 met at Brillion, Friday evening at the invitation of the executive committee of the Calumet County Sportsmen's club to discuss the conservation commission's ice fishing order for Lake Winnebago.

Members of the congress asked Howard Leppla and H. O. Giese, members of the executive council of the Conservation Congress of the two districts, to go to Madison to see what can be done to change the order. The group also started a petition to ask a hearing at Fond du Lac to consider the commission's order.

Members agreed unanimously that it would be useless to continue the Conservation Congress if the conservation commission did not accept their recommendations. Members asserted that if the commission would not accept a unanimous recommendation of the members of the congress from the entire state, the congress could be considered to be a stool pigeon.

Members hoped that a reorganization of the congress would result from this protest. A recommendation was made that the Conservation Congress' executive council meet after the regular congress meeting in July to act as a final judge on all questions put to the congress. When the conservation commission meets to set seasons, members of the executive council would be required to meet with it.

Curious Crowd Gathers to See 'Injured' Man in Ambulance

A curious crowd quickly gathered in front of the Appleton post office about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon as police motorcycles and an ambulance screamed to a stop.

A man lay on the pavement near the right wheel of a large, red automobile.

Police officers were spotted to the north and south of the scene to direct moving cars to other streets and another officer stood over the man lying on the pavement.

A stretcher was taken from the ambulance and the man on the pavement was gently lifted to it. The stretcher was placed in the ambulance.

And then, R. L. Swanson, an instructor at Wilson Junior High school, waved his arm and said: "That's fine, fellas."

The man on the pavement was Sergeant Walter Hendricks, Appleton police department's finger print expert, taking the part of a pedestrian who is "killed" in the new safety movie being filmed by Swanson for educational purposes. The picture is being financed by the board of education and the city council.

The phrase, "It can't happen here," isn't a very good line for Appleton for since the first of the year, five pedestrians have lost their lives within the city limits in traffic accidents, the most recent just last Saturday.

TELL US ALL ABOUT IT, GOVERNOR

It is not likely that this newspaper will stir up a controversy by declaring that Governor Julius P. Heil has considerably fewer supporters today than he enjoyed last November 8, or on January 2 when thousands of well-wishers thronged the state capitol for his inauguration.

Several factors have contributed to the loss of public esteem of the governor which even Republicans will acknowledge. One is the fact that the job which faced the new governor was bigger than he anticipated. Apparently surprised at the discovery, he fumbled around for several months before the legislature found out what he wanted. A second highly important reason is the governor's inexperience in affairs political.

Out of this grew many of the governor's troubles. Now apparently baffled and hurt, vaguely feeling that events have not shaped themselves as they might, he makes speeches like his Wisconsin Rapids classic in which he blames the "wine, women and song" proclivities of the legislature for the administration's shortcomings.

One of the aspects of politics which Heil has ignored completely is publicity. Heil ought to know by this time that running a government differs from running a corporation, in spots anyway. While the stockholders may not have to be informed constantly of the company's affairs, the people in Wisconsin have grown accustomed to the idea. Heil has failed them here.

For the good of his administration and his party, Heil ought immediately to begin work on the preparation of a clear and concise statement of the state's finances, the root of the Republican administration's embarassment during the entire legislative session and today.

Several times the governor has promised to confide in the stockholders of the state government enterprise—which he pointed out in his maiden political speech in 1938 is the biggest business in the state—the affairs and the problems of his stewardship, but he has thus far failed to do so. Early in February he told the legislature that he would appear at monthly intervals to discuss their tasks with them, and at the same time to report the administration's progress to the people. That promise was never fulfilled. Then several months ago he announced a series of radio addresses, a series which was also halted before it was well begun. Heil spoke once, the lieutenant governor followed, more were announced, but they never came. Capitol newspapermen complain that they have during the 10 months of the governor's term been unable to get an interview with him.

The governor's financial worries are not so complicated that the public cannot understand them. The impending treasury defaults are caused by factors for which the governor or his administration are not entirely responsible. But when he proposes heavy new taxes in contrast to his earlier assurances of tax reduction, and without explanations, he is treading a politically perilous path.

Heil, for example, could separate into two accounts the state's budgetary expenses, and illustrate very simply why the total budget has risen. By segregating the expense of the state departments and institutions on one ledger, he could prove that he has actually achieved substantial economies. By assembling the other state expenses, the state aid to localities, the heavily increased cost of pensions, relief and other welfare burdens, he could show the taxpayers a reason for the state deficit and the threat of new taxes. He could compare tax yields this year with revenues in previous years to show another reason for the embarassment in his treasury today.

Honest reporting to the people of his affairs and theirs will do more for Mr. Heil, if he is interested in keeping his job, than expressions of pique and ill-will toward the legislature, which is no more responsible for the state's condition than he is.

ST. CLOUD AND DEBTS

St. Cloud, Minnesota, recently became one of the very few cities of more than 25,000 population that has no debt.

It issued a check of a few thousand dollars as the final payment on a $100,000 bonded indebtedness which it contracted in the midst of the World War No. 1.

St. Cloud is one of the few places in the country that has prepared itself for World War No. 2.

America itself cannot stand, simply cannot afford, participation in another World War.

When World War No. 2 started our national debt over that existing when World War No. 1 got under way had increased 4500 per cent.

That is what we got out of war.

MILK AND AUTO PROBLEMS

Serious labor difficulties exist at an important automobile plant because of a charge by the company that the men were deliberately and upon union orders slowing down their work to make it last longer. Some of the men told reporters that business was at the flood tide now and they figured it was to their advantage to postpone a lay-off period by stretching out the work.

A callous heart is not necessarily turned toward these workers when they are advised that their system is impossible. Slowing down production has never been found a means of equalizing the flow of orders. Such a policy in the strange happenings in the economic world is just as likely to interrupt orders and defeat the very purpose for which it is instituted as anything else.

But there is a close relation between this labor dispute and the marketing of milk for in each instance labor is seeking to solve a problem of jobs by the adoption of a rule that has not heretofore been a producer or preserver of jobs but rather a destroyer of them.

It must be granted, of course, that every industry can stand a certain amount of abuse. An individual or even a group slowing down work or delivering inferior workmanship are all elements that can be taken up by normal slack but when the objective of an individual or group becomes general a pronounced effect will be felt in the industry.

It is the business of auto makers after providing a customary standard of wages and a fair profit to themselves to sell their cars just as cheaply as possible. The very cheapness at which they can be sold increases the orders, the production and therefore the jobs. But if the workers, distracted by the unsteadiness of their jobs, are to be permitted to slow down work, add cost to the manufacture, and ultimately raise the price of the car, they are not only hurting the industry and preventing the public from buying oftener but effectively increasing the unsteadiness in their employment about which they now complain.

Precisely the same principle applies to milk. In the interest of the producer of this article of food and also of the number of men who may be steadily employed both in its production and distribution it is essential that it be sold as cheaply as possible after taking into account the customary standard of wages for the workers and a fair profit for the dairy man.

But labor steps in and says in effect: If milk is permitted to be sold at stores where it can be sold cheapest we cannot support as extensive an employment list of drivers who deliver to homes, therefore we insist upon laws or regulations making the storekeeper charge as much as home delivered milk which will throw the business to the drivers since the homes will accept the convenience of delivery over store purchase so long as the cost is the same.

Labor's purpose to protect itself is genuine but it is not constructive because by a circuitous route it is striking down or crippling the producer.

When labor, in either the auto or milk industry seeks prevailing wages, prevailing hours or prevailing conditions of safety it is within its proper jurisdiction; but when it seeks merely to make jobs where legitimate jobs do not exist it is swinging the axe at the roots of the tree.

In the auto industry it is a pity that employment cannot be made more steady but it is not sensible to blame the manufacturers who are trying day in and day out to get all the orders they can and who certainly cannot materially control their flow. Moreover we are bound to have much more seasonable employment than that in the auto industry.

And in the milk industry, after labor has satisfied itself that it is obtaining wages, hours and conditions in conformity to existing standards, it should not seek to increase the number of jobs and therefore the weight of selling expense since that procedure is an unnatural but very material influence upon production, which strikes at the producer.

FAINT HEART NEVER FOLLOWED THE PACKERS

Figures on the life-expectancy of Fox River Valley citizens in relation to those of other communities would be definitely interesting. Especially if they were brought up to date to include the past Sunday.

A community cannot live through many hours like those nerve-shattering ones during the Packer-Bear game and come out of it with hearts which still beat regularly and arteries which haven't hardened like cement.

The fans who went down to Chicago for the game went through enough. But it was even worse on those who sat at home, shifted nervously from one chair to another, paced the floor, smoked a package of cigarettes and kissed all the children for good luck, several times over.

A man waiting a week in the death house to take his turn in the electric chair never suffered more than most Fox river valley people hanging on every word of the announcer to see if that Herber to Hutson pass was miraculously "complete" or dreadfully "incomplete."

It's a good thing the Packers and the Bears meet only twice each year, for every time they play they take several years off the lives of their supporters.

—DALE HARRISON'S—
In Old New York

New York—When a fellow writes a column about dogs, he strikes a more responsive chord than when he writes about people. A paragraph about Rusty brings me more mail than an entire column about a Personage. I do not know why. I know only that it is so.

Perhaps it is for the same reason that I, too, respond more quickly to letters about dogs. To explain what I mean, here is an excerpt from a letter that has come from Abbeville, Louisiana:

"My little dog is dead—the little Boston with the bat ears who awakened me every morning and who got up from her warm bed at any hour of the coldest night to greet me when I came home, and who idolized me in a skeptical world.

"I never knew until her passing that gone with her were certain props of whose existence I had not dreamed. . . . It is a lonely world today without my little friend, yet I now realize I am a better man for having known my Pup . . .

"I had to send my thoughts to someone. I am a huge, hulking man, born a cowpuncher on a Kansas ranch who in shame at his sorrow over what other folks dismiss with a grin as a dead dog, must unlimber to someone else who may understand that he has suffered a bitter loss indeed. Thank you."

Understand? Most surely I do. Everyone who reads your letter will understand. There aren't very many who will dismiss it with a grin. Those who do simply do not know.

Oddly, the letter came just after I had talked with a man about dogs. He, too, was a huge, hulking man—a man who lived many years of his life with horses and dogs. He is a man of wide interests and an expert internationalist; but our talk was not of dynasties and dictators, but of dogs.

"My dog," he said, "died ten years ago. He was poisoned. Ten years he is gone, yet to this day I cannot speak of him without emotion. I loved him. He was my friend. I shall never have another dog. He meant that much to me. Some people can't understand—we were pals, my dog and I."

And tears rolled softly down his face.

Understand? Why, sir, every time my dog mopes or seems not himself, a prickle of alarm touches my heart. Suppose he should die? I've had that fear a hundred times. I try to visualize what the house would be if, no matter what hour of the night I returned, Rusty wasn't there to bound out of a sound sleep, run to meet me at the door, leap up and press his wet nose against my cheek. They say dogs shouldn't be allowed to kiss people. What do I care what they say? If I ever pushed him rudely away, if I ever refused to submit to his greeting, his dog's heart would ache until I made amends.

Nor will he stand for any domestic discord. If there is even the semblance of strife in my voice or demeanor, Rusty goes to a distant corner, heart-broken. Sometimes, if I am behaving sullenly around the house, I pause and laugh, not that I feel like laughing but just to reassure Rusty. But he doesn't fool easily. He can tell the phony laugh from the McCoy. Nothing will satisfy him except complete calm. Only then will he come jumping out of his misery and be his gay self again.

I asked Mr. Horst von der Goltz, who was a famous secret agent in the World War but now is an American citizen, what dog he considered the most intelligent. He has spent much of his life with animals, and his opinion is to be valued.

"The most intelligent animal of any kind," he said, "is that which spends the most time with its master. A dog that is a pet will be more intelligent than a kennel dog. A dog whose master remains at home a great deal will be more intelligent than a dog whose master is away from home all day.

"It is the same with horses. The most intelligent horse is the cow pony, because he virtually lives with his master—working, eating, sleeping with him. The animal learns its master's mannerisms and accommodates itself to them."

Maybe that is why human emotions react so universally to dogs. The dogs take on human traits of loyalty and devotion, but never seem to acquire man's uglier characteristics. Their only worry is their master's well-being. If they are sick, they suffer in silence, like Ladies and Gentlemen. They blame no one for their pain, and they do not brag about themselves.

To the gentlemen from Abbeville, La., I can say only that I do understand; that I am sorry the little dog had to die—the little Boston with the bat ears.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO
Tuesday, Nov. 10, 1914

"There is no need of any man seeking lodging in the police station around here if he wants work," Luther Lindauer, Kaukauna, said when it was mentioned that 11 men were at the station the previous night. "Kaukauna has been looking for men at 22½ cents an hour. We want them on the roads and I want them in the quarry," he declared.

10 YEARS AGO
Tuesday, Nov. 5, 1929

Martin Boldt and Son was awarded the contract for construction of the Fuhremann Canning factory on W. Spencer street north of the city home. The new structure was to cost approximately $50,000. The plant was to be ready to start operations by March 1.

Hundreds of dollars were being spent by the Menasha Wooden Ware company for trees and shrubbery which were being planted along the company's Washington street property from the Gear property and St. Patrick church property to the south end of the Menasha bridge over the Fox river.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

"TELL ME A STORY, MOTHER"

"Tell me a story, Mother!"
The baby voice implores,
And Mother's happy phrases
Draw from Time's varied stores.

The legends Mother tells him
Her mother told to her.
She pulls the velvet curtains;
She sees the firelight stir,

And with her small boy nestling
Within her silken arms,
She tells the same old story
And adds to it her charms.

"Tell me a story, Mother!"
The world is filled with hate.
But in the cushioned armchair
Is only pleasant fate.

Did the fierce tyrant's mother
Sit in a quiet room,
And touch with tender fingers
A cheek with childhood's bloom?

Did he, with sweet impatience,
Cling to his mother's knee,
Begging her for a story
And listening sleepily?

"Tell me a story, Mother!"
The crackling firelight leaps,
The story hour is ended,
For Mother's baby sleeps.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—War correspondence from far behind the front:

Grover

Isolationist senators and house members insist that the west is going to be rough with those members voting for repeal of the arms embargo.

They reason this way: Of all sections of the country, the west is most likely to fluctuate in 1940. It isn't predominantly Democratic. A comparatively moderate portion of the vote, swinging one way or the other, will carry the election that way.

They argue, and back up their case with masses of western mail, that isolationist sentiment in the west will play old hob with the lads who voted for repeal of the embargo. They expect it to be the "balance of power" issue.

They suspect that a change in the situation in Europe might give them a big bulge or possibly wipe out their case altogether. They are less positive in their assertions as to what the issue may do in the presidential campaign.

Borah Not Dead Again

Senator Borah has been reported dead again, the third time in four years. Newspapers and press associations were deluged with calls from people who said they "heard it on the radio."

Immediately the news organizations telephoned his office to learn what was what. His staff denied it, but he wasn't in the office. We happened to be walking down the corridor with the senator when his staff rushed out en bloc to let him know he was dead again. He doesn't think it is very funny.

What Will Navy Do?

You can ask all you want to but no official source will tell you what the navy is expected to do in that new strip of "neutral water" between the three mile limit and the newly proclaimed peace zone around the Americas.

We asked an official information source at the navy what a U. S. destroyer would do if it came upon a German submarine getting set to sink a torpedo into the flanks of a British freighter somewhere within the neutral zone.

"All orders in that connection are sealed and secret," he said. "I don't know what they are and don't want to learn until the war is over. The man 15 steps down the corridor knows, but he won't tell you."

That would be Admiral Stark, chief of naval operations.

Congress Wants to Know

Many members of congress would like to know what the orders are. They doubt if the navy has orders to fire on any belligerent ships within the neutral zone, no matter what they are doing. In most circumstances that would be war. Best information available is that the U. S. destroyer, seeing a belligerent submarine or warship about to sink another ship, would ask them to "move on" farther out into the Atlantic—just like a park policeman barking at a bum.

If the warship refused to move the destroyer commander would simply have to write a report about it. Then the report would course up through channels to the State Department, which would protest to the owner of the warship or submarine.

That wouldn't be as futile as it sounds. Both sides in the present European war want to keep in the good graces of the United States. The belligerent naval commander, understanding the situation, might just shrug his shoulders and "move on," calling out "see you later" to the frightened freighter.

PROPAGANDA FOR TEACHERS

Editor Post-Crescent—The convention session of the Wisconsin Education Association which met in Milwaukee last week was crashed by two British propagandists, one Willie Hitler and one Jan Masaryk, presumably included in the million dollar budget set aside by the international capitalists to propagandize America.

I can see a very good reason for a presentation of the European situation at a meeting of this kind, but, I also maintain that the teaching body in Wisconsin is entirely capable of distinguishing the merits of the opposing sides, and, I am at a loss to understand why both sides were not presented.

Jan Masaryk who is the son of the first president of Czechoslovakia, did not put in an appearance as scheduled on Saturday morning, but his speech was read to visiting teachers by a substitute.

Because of the agents' difficulty with the American language, most of the reading was unintelligible to the audience. Many of the teachers left during this recital. They were reprimanded by the chairman of the meeting for this so-called "discourtesy."

This Jan Masaryk is the son of the man, who, as the first president of the Czecho-Slovakian republic, refused to give the different minorities in that republic, the autonomy which he had promised them when the republic was founded after the last World war. This breach of faith on the part of the elder Masaryk caused the discontent among these minorities which finally became one of the reasons for the present European upheaval.

The speech of Willie Hitler, parts of which I have read, contained many inaccuracies. I believe we call this propaganda.

It is not the strength of the army and Nazi party that prevent the German people from revolting. Why should they be discontinued with a regime which up to date has been victorious?

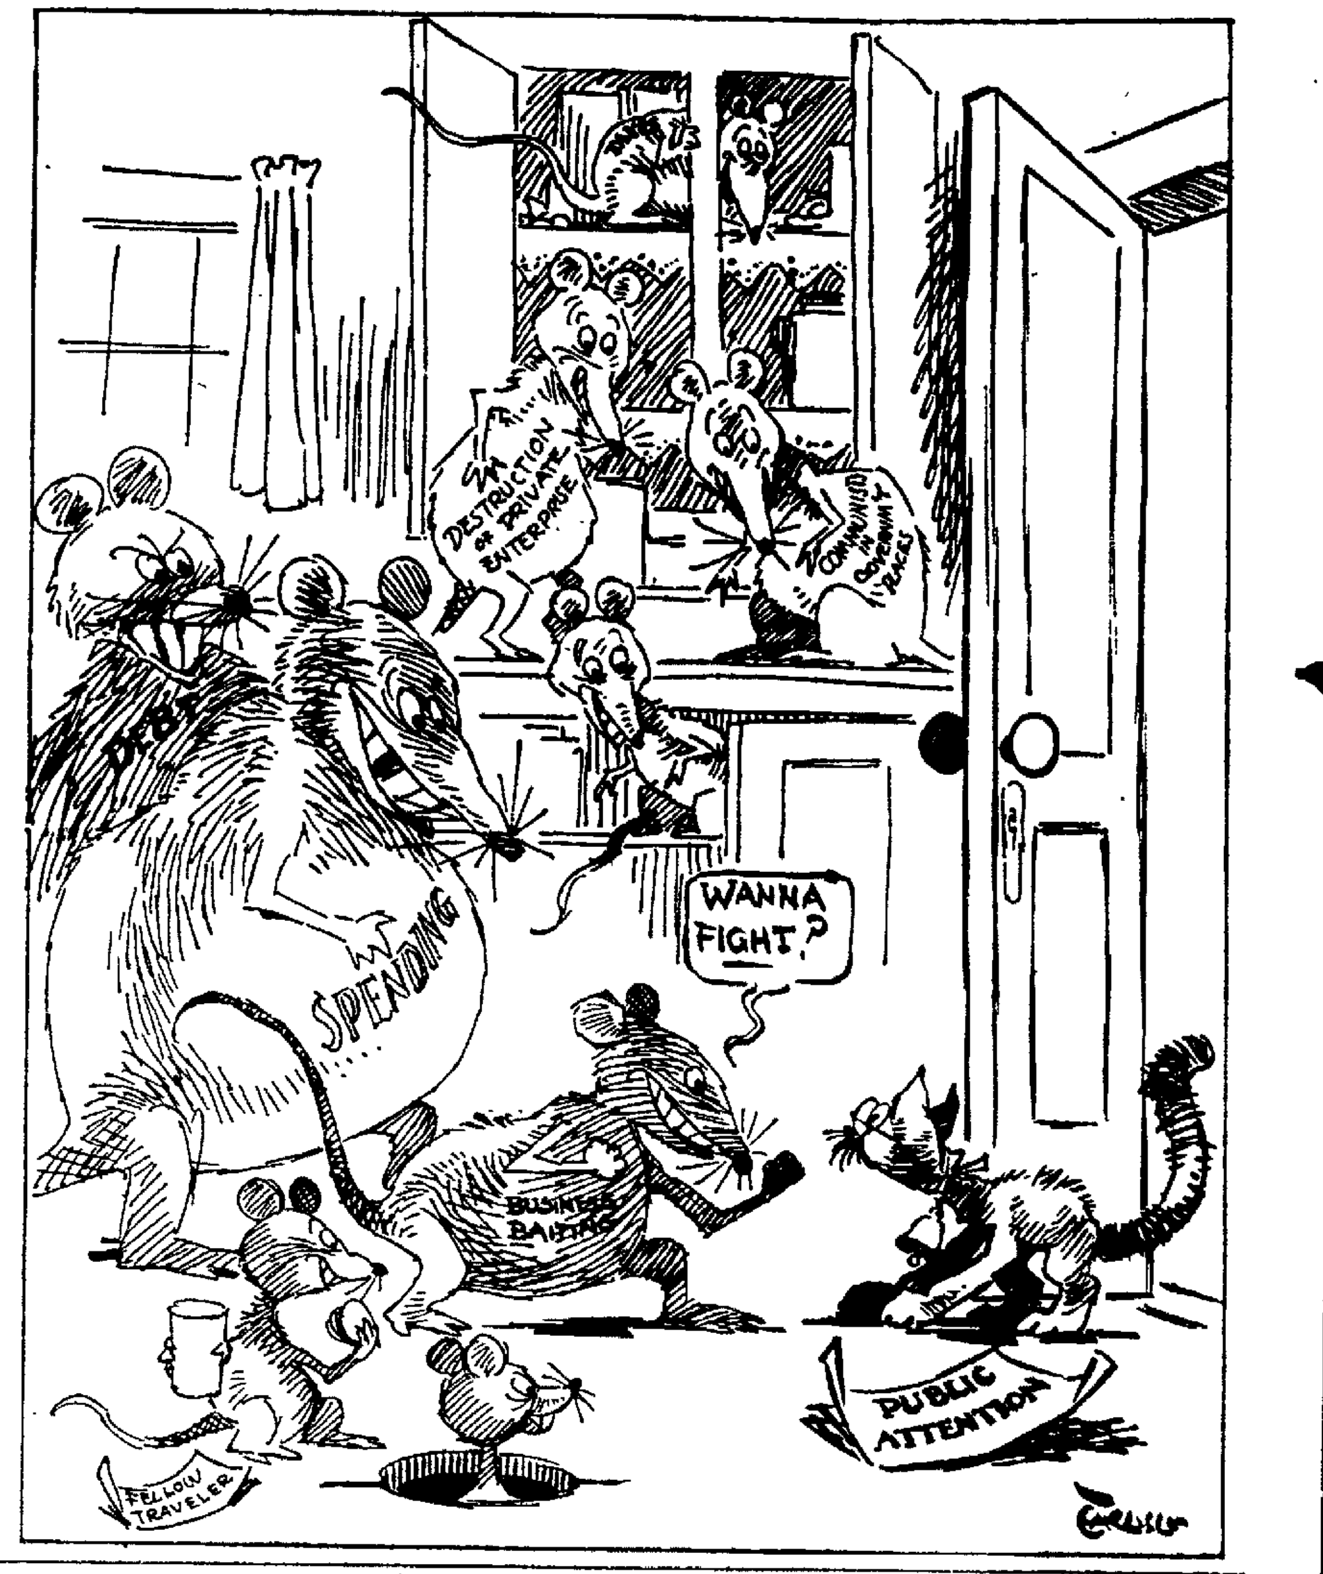
Germany has been on a war economy since 1933, thereby conserving her resources. Far from being exhausted, her food supply of potatoes, cabbage, bread, cake and beer is plentiful.

Then, this speaker who calls himself a cousin of Adolph's tells us, "The great strength of democracies—freedom—is their weakness. They permit the bacteria of evil forces to get into their blood streams." Right-o, Mr. Hitler, That's exactly what this one and only democracy in the group has done. We have permitted propagandists like you Mr. Hitler, the other English lords of the international clique who are now here in America, Mr. Stalin who according to your leaders can do no wrong, and your cousin Adolph to creep into our American organizations with your poison.

What we want at our teacher's conventions are not paid propagandists but promulgators of good sound Americanism. Or, would such a speaker be called a Nazi or a Fascist?

An American.

THE CAT ARRIVES HOME



Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — One of Governor Heil's most publicized exploits was his announcement several months ago of a plan to establish milk stands in the capitol, on Milwaukee's Wisconsin avenue and other places, as a part of his milk salesmanship campaign.

Wyngaard

To date one such stand has been established, with the financial support of the state department of agriculture and markets, in the rotunda of the state capitol here.

Curious about whether or not the enterprise is paying its way, a reporter stopped to chat with the milk maid the other day. He found that her average sales thus far have shown a disposition of 90 half pint bottles a day. At five cents each, therefore, the average daily receipts total $4.50.

The girl has a stenographer's rating in the department of agriculture and markets, and capitol stenographers get $100 a month. Thus it appears that even if the milk profit is generously reckoned at 100 per cent, the state is losing in the venture.

O'KONSKY PROMOTES

Alvin E. O'Konsky, at different periods in his varied career a high school principal, a university professor, a lecturer, a press agent, a political stump speaker, and a campaign manager, is going to become an editor, he is telling friends.

O'Konsky says he will soon take over a weekly newspaper in Iron county. His attitude hints that it has some connection with political plans which he will talk about later. There have been no explanations for the failure of O'Konsky's Capitol Comment, a periodical devoted to Republican and administration publicity, to appear in recent months.

CIG TAX REPEAL?

A group of citizens were overheard in the capitol the other day exchanging opinions on state affairs, including the possibility that the cigarette tax, which some legislators called an "emergency" tax when they were enacting it, will be repealed at the 1941 session of the legislature.

If that idea is general, there are going to be disappointments after the 1941 session.

For persons acquainted with the facts of state finance believe firmly that the cigarette tax will not be repealed in the next legislature or even in the next succeeding legislature. Politicians will denounce it in the next campaign, but whoever wins in 1940 will find that the exigencies of state finance will demand that it be retained. Like the sales tax in other states it will become a campaign issue, but even if the issue helps a new administration to power, the tax will stay. It is too easy to collect, too lucrative. The problem at the next legislature will be to invent even another new tax, unless all present signs are meaningless.

POLITICAL NOTES

Friends of Robert K Henry report that the number of Republicans calling upon him is increasing as the new year nears. Henry is supposed to be planning a definite decision on his possible candidacy by Jan. 1. . . . Andrew J. Biemiller, who fought him bitterly and sometimes successfully during the last legislative session, called on R. W. Peterson in his public service commission office for a friendly chat the other day. . . . The department of agriculture and markets pulled a boner when it allowed its publicity man to handle releases for the Council of Agriculture's convention, especially since Herman Ihde, Council president, is also boss of the department as chairman of its board. . . . A Marinette county paper recently boosted Walter Melchoir of Appleton, county Progressive leader, for congress.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

SORE MOUTH

Everett S. Lain, M.D., and G. Sherrill Caughron, D.D.S., in a contribution on electrogalvanic phenomena in the mouth where dissimilar metals are present—such as gold and zinc, aluminum or tin, or silver or mercury (amalgam) and gold, or platinum and aluminum or chromium or strontium. These authors give a list of two dozen or more metals used in dentistry, some of which are electrogalvanically positive and others negative. Presence of two metals, one positive the other negative, in the mouth, is sufficient to produce a miniature galvanic battery effect, with the normal saliva serving as electrolyte.

In some instances, despite the presence of two dissimilar metals and a scientifically measurable galvanic current passing between them, the patient experiences no particular trouble save occasional metallic taste or sometimes a slight shock when some metal conductor placed in the mouth happens to bridge the space between the electrodes.

But in a good many instances obstinate irritation or actual ulceration and sores, resembling canker sores or leucoplakia (white patches) on gums or tongue or cheek lining opposite one or the other metal or in the path between them, persistently recur or refuse to heal until one or the other metal is removed from the mouth.

A correspondent (R.H.W.), whose technical or scientific qualifications are not known to me, says a simple experiment will prove that electric current can be produced by dissimilar metals in the mouth. Thus, if you place a silver dime and an iron wire nail in a pool of saliva close together but not quite in contact, then connect the terminals of an ordinary 0-1 milliameter, such as is commonly used in radio work, to the two pieces of metal, a current of as much as 700 or 800 microamperes will be recorded, which is certainly enough to produce effects of electrolysis.

If that is correct, as I believe, then these members of the medical and dental professions who have offhand dismissed the idea of galvanic sore mouth as absurd perhaps had better think again.

Another correspondent (W.B.C.) who calls himself an electrical engineer, informs me that a gold filling and an amalgam filling in contact with each other in the mouth may cause plenty of trouble, but if the dissimilar metals are not in actual contact no electric action can take place. Yet W.B.C. speaks of saliva as an electrolyte in these circumstances. It is pretty confusing. Maybe medicine is not the only inexact science.

If the experiment suggested by R. H. W. is so simple, why couldn't a delicate milliameter be applied directly to the dissimilar metals in the mouth and the electrochemical potentiality to irritate or burn the mucous membrane measured in the specific case?

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

Now comes the day when nearly everybody votes, plays golf or finds a little time to weatherstrip the windows. The mutuel betting machines were an issue in New York, and it was a sure bet that more than one voter would pull the lever under all those candidates' names, thinking they were horses.

Speaking of horses, the annual horse show is on again, and it's nice to drop in, look at the horses and remember the old days when there were no green or red lights and you could park anywhere.

Most of the parking trouble today is due to the fact everybody who owns an auto insists on driving it downtown, even if it's only a 10-block trip. If everybody who had a horse and wagon in the horse and buggy days had driven it down to main street and tried to leave it there all day, there wouldn't have been any available parking space for a casual visitor either.

The thing that prevented traffic congestion in the old days was that some people went places on foot, especially if the distance wasn't over a mile.

I don't see why they don't advertise a class at horse shows for spectators in fur coats costing under $10,000.

Unless it's because nobody in that set would admit wearing anything that cheap.

Jaces Urged to Assume Lead in Community Work

Heilig Speaker at 'Bosses' Banquet; Announce 'Iron Lung' Move

Herb F. Heilig, vocational school director, prescribed leadership in community affairs as a means of self-betterment and "bosses" got an earful of what Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce members are doing in the way of civic activity as the organization banqueted members' employers at Hotel Appleton last night.

The Jaces are going to put their collective shoulders to the wheel in a move to procure an "iron lung" for St. Elizabeth hospital in cooperation with other organizations. About half the necessary amount for an artificial respirator has been raised through the annual infantile paralysis birthday balls and an effort will be made to secure the balance in connection with the Jan. 30 event this season, according to Harold Stout, chairman of a special Jace committee.

Fred Boughton said his committee is ironing out plans for a civil identification program. He said Chief of Police George T. Prim has approved the voluntary fingerprinting project and offered his assistance, the cooperation of the press has been assured and quarters will be provided in the post office building for the work.

Dale Fox discussed progress on the swimming pool project and Dr. L. B. McBain reported on the distribution of free milk to needy families.

Points Out Opportunities

Advising the young men to learn leadership by leading, Mr. Heilig pointed out there is opportunity to get this training by aiding in financial drives and membership campaigns of organizations designed to enrich the city. "Don't work to get to the top," he cautioned, "but get to the top by work." He warned the group against becoming a "social club."

Observing that it is American Education week, Mr. Heilig said public education has paid high dividends to the American way of life and it gives the biggest return on the tax dollar of any governmental service.

"Present educational methods in our public schools, however, are 30 years behind the times," he continued. "There is a 30-year lag between research, facts known, and current practices. Our public school system is as good as we want it to be. It is no more progressive than it dares to be and it is no more conservative than it has to be.

"I hope to see the day when the kindergarten idea is carried through all the grades because an unnatural environment exists which hampers effective learning," he declared. Stating the school curriculum has little relation to life, Heilig said the real learning process begins when the youth gets out of school and it should continue to the 40-year mark as the young man conditions himself to become a leader in organizations and the community.

W. E. Smith, chairman of the Red Cross roll call in Appleton, briefly described the work of the organization and provided vivid proof of its worth in the form of little Fred Stoffel, 415 W. College avenue, who was burned during a Boy Scout camporee at Clintonville this summer. Severely burned about his face and body, Freddie was rushed to the Red Cross emergency tent where quick action on the part of the attendants saved his life and looks, Mr. Smith said.

PARENTS OF WILSON PUPILS PRESENT PROFESSOR QUIZ PROGRAM

Shown above is a crowd's eye view of the Professor Quiz program staged last night in connection with "go to school night" for parents of Wilson Junior High school pupils. Veterans Groups To Hold Ceremony Saturday Morning

Plan Armistice Services at Corner of College Ave., Oneida St.

The Oney Johnston post of the American Legion, Harvey Pierre post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and other veteran and patriotic organizations of the city will join in an Armistice day ceremony Saturday morning at the intersection of College avenue and Oneida street.

Clarence O. Baetz, legion chairman for the observances, said this morning that the procession will form on S. Appleton street, between College avenue and Lawrence street, about 10:40 Saturday mornin, and will march to the Oneida street and College avenue intersection, reaching that point about 10:50.

Park Board Accepts Gift of 5,000 Tulip Bulbs and 1,000 Hyacinths From Post-Crescent

Appleton next year will have a start towards a tulip time of its own for 5,000 Holland tulip bulbs and 1 000 hyacinths arrived at the Appleton Post-Crescent building today from Haarlem, Holland.

The Post-Crescent offered the bulbs to the Appleton park board which enthusiastically accepted them and will plant them this week where their beauty and color will give the most people the greatest joy during flowering time.

The bulbs are the gift of the Post-Crescent to the city in an attempt, through beautiful plantings, to promote a civic interest in beautifying the city. Appleton is one of the few cities in the United States which will receive Holland bulbs this year in cooperation with the Holland Bulb Industry, of Haarlem, Holland. Last year only 20 cities received them.

Famous for Bulbs

The Holland bulbs are famous throughout the world. Tulips first found their way from Persia and Asia Minor to Constantinople. There an ambassador of the Emporer Ferdinand the First saw them at the Sultan's court and sent some to Central Europe. Through Bavaria they eventually reached Holland where tulip growing became a business until fabulous sums were being paid for them. This was stopped by proclamation issued by the states of Holland.

During those centuries, the cultivation of bulbs in Holland was becoming a work of national importance, developing along scientific lines. Bulb planting now is no small matter in Holland for there are under cultivation about 2,000 varieties of tulips alone and Holland devotes about 20 000 acres of her land to the production of bulbs.

New varieties of tulips can be very expensive and a bed of rare type may cost a lot of money. It is a form of sober investment, however, unlike the wild speculation of three or four centuries ago when men would barter all their possessions for a single bulb. Only one or two varieties remain from that mad time, but ever since then Haarlem has been the center of the bulb fields.

Produces 1½ Billion

Today Holland produces about 1½ billions of tulip bulbs annually in rich contrasts and harmonies of every color to delight flower lovers. From a humble beginning, it has become the second largest industry in Holland.

The laboratory work in connection with the bulb industry is a feature of the industry of which the whole Dutch nation is proud. Everything possible is done to insure that bulbs leaving the Dutch shores shall be sound, healthy, well ripened. The nation has ideal climatic and soil conditions for the production of good bulbs and added to that, there have been years of patient enterprize and research to perfect the bulbs.

Charge Man Took Cash on Promises Of Job Patronage

Report Attorney General In Milwaukee to Begin Court Action

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Attorney General John E. Martin was to be in Milwaukee today to commence court action against a man who is alleged to have collected money on promises to obtain patronage from the Heil administration, it was reported reliably today.

Although there was no official announcement at Martin's office, it is known that he assigned a special investigator several weeks ago to examine complaints that persons anxious to get state jobs had paid money to the alleged patronage "salesman" and had failed to be appointed in the state service.

It is said that the man collected considerable sums, including a substantial payment from a person ambitious to become chief of the state beverage tax division, a job which supposedly carried a salary of $10,000, according to the complaint.

However, the job went to John W. Roach of Appleton, who had held it earlier, in a competitive civil service examination. It pays $4,200.

Other allegations concerned promises to obtain relatively minor jobs in the state service for smaller sums. It was said that the accused man took $750 in consideration for obtaining the beverage tax administrative job.

Decision in Estate Claim Is Upheld by State Supreme Court

Mr. and Mrs. Anton F. Ullrich, 817 W. Spencer street, lost an estate claim today when the supreme court affirmed a decision made by Judge Fred V. Heinemann in county court.

The couple filed a claim against the estate of Ullrich's father, Justin Ullrich, for $5,158 which was claimed due for caring for the elder Ullrich before his death in 1938. The claim was protested by Mrs. Theresa Schlitz, a sister of Anton Ullrich, who was named executrix under her father's will. The will divided his estate among four children. Anton and his wife had lived at the father's home from 1933 to 1938.

They appealed from Judge Heinemann's ruling which disallowed all of the claim except $58.50 for special services.

American Legion Post Membership Drive Is Started

150 Men Present at Meeting as 3-Day Campaign Is Launched

The Oney Johnston post of the American Legion launched its annual 3-day membership drive preceding Armistice day and pledged anew its opposition to America's participation in the present European war at a meeting last night at the clubhouse.

More than 150 members of the post attended the meeting to receive instructions on the drive and to talk over other legion matters, including the Armistice day banquet Saturday night at the clubhouse and the College avenue observances Saturday morning.

Edgar P. Schommer, chairman for the membership drive, urged the entire post to act as a committee to obtain new members for the organization and re-enrol former ones who have allowed their memberships to lapse. Immediate payment of dues was stressed at the meeting

The Appleton post, one of the largest in the state, is driving toward its biggest membership in history The membership campaign will extend through Thursday, with Friday set aside as a "mopping up" day before Armistice activities on Saturday.

It has been pointed out by Frank H. Wilson, commander of the post, and other legion officials that a strong American Legion organization, both locally and nationally, will fortify opposition to American participation in the present war. The legion, organized originally to further the cause of peace, stands unequivocally against America's joining in the European conflict.

Treasurer Reports Winnebago County In Good Condition

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh — Topped by an increase of $4,586.31 in the October, 1939 delinquent tax collections over the corresponding period of 1938, Winnebago county's treasury boasts a "substanial surplus" carried over from last year's budget, Earl E. Fuller, county treasurer, reported Monday.

While Fuller could not state the exact surplus which will revert back to the county's general fund, he revealed that his books showed a balance of $430,604 as of Oct. 31, 1939 in comparison to a balance of $366,175 at the same time last year. This surplus can be used at the end of the year for general purposes, for retirement of the bonded debt, or for the reduction of 1940 tax levies

The treasurer explained that a portion of the surplus is "ear-marked" for running expenses and trust funds due the state. An intricate system of bookkeeping, required by state law, prevents an accurate estimate of the residue which will accrue to the general fund in December

Delinquent tax collections during the month of October amounted to $27,627.64 as against $23,041 33 for the same period of 1938. Unredeemed tax certificates of Oct. 31, 1938 totaled $610,601 81 compared to $547,086 28 as of Oct. 31, 1939. This represents a decrease of $63,515 53 in the total unredeemed tax certificates outstanding.

Menasha — Postmaster Joseph R. Coyle today called attention to the fact that trans-Atlantic air mail service has not been suspended because of the European war. When the trip which formerly operated over the northern portion of the Atlantic was suspended because of winter ice and snow conditions, the operation was transferred to the southern route. The same frequency of service is maintained except that both trips operate to Lisbon over the southern route instead of one over the northern and one over the southern route.

minister, Eelco Van Kleffens, and Belgian Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak, who came here with King Leopold.

Efforts were made to keep the visit a secret, but placing of a heavy military guard outside the palace caused the news to leak out. An official announcement issued after midnight noted King Leopold's arrival but did not comment on the reason for the visit.

Informed sources said only that Leopold had come here to "discuss some aspects of the international situation." These sources disclaimed knowledge of any new move by Germany which might have motivated the conversations.

Usually competent authorities said it was unlikely that the two sovereigns were considering a peace move.

Possibility of a mutual assistance pact between the nations also was generally discounted.

The two states have followed divergent policies in recent years. While Belgium has accepted guarantees from both Germany and Great Britain, The Netherlands has declined to accept pledges from either.

BERLIN SURPRISED

Berlin —(P)— Official Germany appeared somewhat surprised today by the announcement that King Leopold of the Belgians and Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands were making a new peace overture.

It was said official reaction would not be given until after a full report was received from The Hague.

First indications, however, were that the nazis felt neutral countries missed their big chance to mediate the war immediately following Adolf Hitler's reichstag "peace" speech of Oct. 6 at the close of the Polish campaign.

Guard Unit Will Join in Training Session at Sparta

Commander of Company I Receives Winter Encampment Orders

Neenah — Captain Howard G. Whitpan received definite orders today that Company I, 127th infantry, Wisconsin National Guard, will attend the fall encampment at Camp McCoy, Sparta, from Saturday, Nov. 11 to Friday Nov. 17.

An extensive training schedule is planned for the encampment, consisting of scouting, patroling, squad platoon and company problems. Men and officers will be in barracks instead of tents at the fall encampment.

Because of the expiration of terms of service of old members, there are vacancies for four more men, and those who wish to enlist are instructed to attend either the Monday or Tuesday meetings this week.

The company will drill Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights, and Thursday night all members of the company will receive physical examinations from Dr. T. D. Smith.

Captain Whitpan expressed his appreciation to employers of Neenah, Menasha, Appleton and Kaukauna for their cooperation in making it possible for employes who belong to the company to attend the fall encampment. It is expected that a full company of men and officers will attend.

Extra Payment to Road Contractor Rapped at Hearing

Frey Says $17,000 Claim Was Not Handled in Businesslike Way

Madison —(P)— August Frey, director of the division of departmental research, concluded questioning of E. L. Roettiger, state highway engineer, today with the comment that his testimony disclosed the highway commission did not handle the $17,000 extra compensation claim of a Milwaukee contractor in a businesslike way.

The questions asked of Roettiger by James S. Fornary, Racine, counsel for the division, developed a new angle on the commission's handling of contracts for the 15-mile Wisconsin Rapids-Wisconsin Dells road, which is part of Highway 13.

Yesterday estimates on the amount of materials required on the road came under scrutiny, but today's study involved payment of $17,000 to Payne and Dolan, Milwaukee contractors, for extra costs encountered in quarrying stone.

Roettiger testified he recommended denial of payment, but said the commission voted unanimously to reimburse the firm. He said he did not recall his recommendation for disposal of an additional claim of $874 from the contractor, or what the commission decided.

Informal Talks

Contending that the $17,000 should not have been paid, Fornary asked:

"Wasn't this handled in an ordinary and routine manner at the commission meeting?"

"Yes, it appeared so at the time, but it had been discussed informally by the commissioners before the meeting and they had decided what to do," Roettiger said.

"Just the same, wasn't the $17,000 payment an out and out grant to the contractor?" Fornary continued.

"I don't choose to term it that," Roettiger replied, "but the contractor got the money just the same."

W. J. Haselton, Wisconsin Rapids, engineer of the fourth division, followed Roettiger to the stand.

He told Fornary that he did not participate in laying out the original design of the Dells-Rapids road, but had checked it several times while it was being built.

Haselton was scheduled for further examination later today.

Fornary asserted yesterday that an order for 6,526 cubic yards of additional bituminous road material in 1933 cost more than substantially the same product in the original contract.

Roettiger contended however that the commission decided that the road needed the "stability" the costlier material would provide. He was assistant state engineer in 1933.

When the contract was let the material cost $2.69 a cubic yard, but when the extra supply was ordered the price was $4.20, Fornary said, adding that a common grade of gravel which could have been purchased for $1.50 a cubic yard would have proved satisfactory.

Use of the highest-priced product resulted in the state paying about $9,800 more than it should have, and the federal government withdrawing its aid, Fornary asserted.

Declaring that the federal government refused to approve the material because it was too expensive, and that the work entailed in applying it cost $27,000, Fornary asserted the state lost two-thirds or approximately $18,000 in federal aid.

Roettiger replied, however, that since the state was working with a fund of several million dollars to be spent in areas it selected, it was used on other state projects.

Fornary drew an admission from Roettiger that the commission figured the 15-mile job would cost about $155,000, but that it finally amounted to $225,000. Roettiger said, however, such miscalculations were rare.

HONORED

Dr. Rufus Bagg, above, professor emeritus of geology at Lawrence college, was made an honorary member of the Wisconsin Geological society last night at Milwaukee. Dr. Bagg talked on peat formations in Center swamp last evening before the state group of geologists.

Geology Society Honors Dr. Bagg

Lawrence Professor Emeritus Is Made Honorary Member

Dr. Rufus Mather Bagg, professor emeritus of geology at Lawrence college, was one of two men to receive honorary memberships from the Wisconsin Geological society last night at Milwaukee. Dr. Samuel A. Barrett, director the Milwaukee public museum, was the other.

Dr. Bagg discussed the geological history of Wisconsin peat bogs. He estimated that the peat formation known as Center swamp near Appleton is 10,000 years old.

In nearby limestone, Dr. Bagg added, he has found starfish fossils, indicating that land won a battle over water in the area.

Badger Lawmakers Catching Up With Work and Speeches

Duties Shelved During Neutrality Debate are Coming to the Fore

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—No rest for weary Wisconsin congressmen! Endless duties, shelved during the neutrality issue, now rear their heads.

Congressman John C. Schafer, Milwaukee Republican, remained in Washington to "take care of public business," for "someone has to keep an eye on all the Charlie McCarthys of the administration," he said.

Suitcases of Senators Robert M. LaFollete, Jr., Madison Progressive, and Alexander Wiley, Chippewa Falls Republican, snapped shut with the closing of the special session. Wiley is scheduled for an Armistice day speech on "America At Peace" to be given at Manitowoc, Nov. 11.

Busiest speaking program planned is that of Congressman Joshua L. Johns, Appleton Republican, who will discuss reciprocal trade treaties before the state cheese-makers associations at Fond du Lac on Nov. 7. An armistice address is on his calendar for Nov. 11 in Manitowoc. And Johns is preparing a speech on "better understanding between farmers and businessmen" for Racine on Nov. 16 when Kiwanis clubs of the district entertain neighboring farmers.

Wants "To Come Back"

Congressman Reid F. Murray, Waupaca Republican, will return home this week "to get acquainted with as many people as I can in my district," said the congressman who is serving his first term and "would like to come back to congress sometime."

Other congressmen from Wisconsin who remained in Washington are Bernard J. Gehrmann, Mellen Progressive, Stephen Bolles, Janesville Republican, and Lewis D. Thill, Milwaukee Republican.

Gehrmann said he will stay until Dec. 1 to make "contacts with almost every government department." Veterans cases, Indian affairs, and the "national milk monopoly problem" will keep him busy. Congressmen Bolles and Thill hope to get away in a few weeks.

Returning home, also, are Congressmen Merlin Hull, Black River Falls Progressive, Frank B. Keefe, Oshkosh Republican, and Charles Hawks, Jr., Horicon Republican.

Farm Loan Groups Form Federation

Will Centralize Ideas, Action to Aid Farmer, Save Credit

Wisconsin Rapids—(P)—The Federation of National Farm Loan associations of Wisconsin, a co-operative credit organization of 124 farm loan associations, was formed here yesterday.

Representatives of associations in 25 counties attended the meeting. A constitution and by-laws were adopted and the following temporary officers were authorized to file incorporation papers:

O. S. Griswold of Medford, president; A. R. Albert of Hancock, vice-president; Chris Slotten of Wittenberg, secretary-treasurer; W. H. Bundy of Menomonie, J. R. Williams of Lancaster, Hans C. Hanson of Withee, and Frank D. Ash of Hammond, directors.

The letter calling the meeting stated it was the organization's purpose "to centralize ideas and action to aid the farmer and to save our credit structure."

The delegates adopted resolutions calling for reduced interest rates on farm loans and authorization for farm loan associations to dispose of real estate. Several speakers criticized some of the federal land bank policies.

A definite date for the federation's next meeting was not set, but it was indicated that it may be held in Madison at the time of the "farm and home week" observance next January.

Dickson Worked in Steel Mill To Earn Money for Instruction

A STEEL factory and a cigar store gave Donald Dickson, popular young baritone who will sing at Memorial chapel the night of Nov. 15, the opportunity to earn money to pay for voice instruction.

The young baritone, who is a member of the Metropolitan Opera company and widely known because of his radio work, decided while attending high school in Cleveland that he would be a singer.

First he worked as a clerk in a tobacco shop and later became a steel worker in the same plant in Cleveland where his father worked as foreman.

Dickson first attracted attention in 1932 when he won a national contest for unknown singers. Artur Rodzinski, conductor of the Cleveland Symphony orchestra, became interested in him and for two seasons Dickson appeared in special operatic performances which Rodzinski produced in Cleveland.

Dickson went to New York in 1936 to continue study. The Metropolitan Opera association engaged him for its 1937 season. Later he was signed to a contract by the National Broadcasting company and ultimately became a star on a widely known commercial program.

Brown County Top In N. E. Section Medical Facilities

Study Shows Fox Valley Has Most Physicians And Hospitals

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Of the Fox river valley and northeastern Wisconsin counties, Brown county has most medical facilities in proportion to its population, the state public welfare department reported in a new study today. The report was contained in a manual of instructions and statistical information for county welfare workers in the administration of medical assistance laws for recipients of social security aids.

The study showed that in general the populous counties of Wisconsin, such as those in the Fox river valley, have the largest number of hospitals and physicians, and that they serve wide areas surrounding. Several counties have no hospitals, the study showed, while three, Washburn, Price and Florence, are reported by the department to have no physicians.

Show Distribution

The distribution of hospital and medical facilities in the Fox river valley area was reported by the department in the following tabulation It shows the population per physician in each county, and the population per hospital bed:

County	Physician	Hospital
Brown	962	176
Outagamie	1142	314
Calumet	1532	0(x)
Manitowoc	416	371
Waupaca	1107	332
Shawano	1972	516
Winnebago	1095	170

(x) Calumet county has no hospital

The department also revealed that medical assistance represents a considerable part of social security expenditures. In Outagamie county last year, for example, it accounted for $11,684, or 42 per cent of the total cost of pensions.

Red Cross Warns of Dangers Of Carbon Monoxide Poisoning

With colder weather nearing the Outagamie county chapter of the American Red Cross today warned housewives motorists and amateur stokers to beware of poisoning and asphyxiation from carbon monoxide gas, a colorless and odorless poison

Harold F. Enlows, director of the Red Cross accident prevention program, said that as little as two hundredths of 1 per cent in the air will produce symptoms of poisoning and 1 per cent of carbon monoxide in the air may be fatal in a few minutes

Proper treatment, he said, consists in getting the patient to fresh air immediately

If breathing has stopped, is weak, or present only in occasional gasps, start artificial respiration immediately and continue until normal breathing is resumed or rigor mortis has set in," he said

Enlows advocated the following preventive measures:

Do not run an automobile engine in a closed garage, or sit in a closed parked car with the engine running

If there is an odor of illuminating gas, ventilate the premises and get competent advice from your gas company

Use a flash light not match or candle in attempting to locate a gas leak.

Use care when boiling liquids on a gas stove so that they do not boil over and extinguish or partially extinguish the gas flame.

Avoid the use of tubing to connect gas heaters, especially in sleeping rooms.

Do not leave a gas flame burning low in a room where one is sleeping

Make certain that furnace pipes are not clogged, and that there are no holes in drafts or dampers, as carbon monoxide gas is also found in smoke from fires and coal stoves and furnaces.

Hull Opposes Plan To Shift Ships to Foreign Registry

belief that it was a sound situation without 'any element of a dodge" from the neutrality act.

Senator Connally (D-Texas) told reporters that transfer of registry by some American lines was to be anticipated. Senator Capper (D-Kans.), although terming the proposal a surprise, added that he saw nothing to be alarmed about.

On the other hand, Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime union, declared in New York that the transfer would mean "the company can ignore the collective bargaining contract with us"

"If they put alien seamen on these ships to evade the neutrality law and our union contracts," he said, "we will march 10 000 seamen down to Washington and picket the place 'till they drop '

CURRAN'S PROTEST

New York—(P)—Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime union (C.I.O.), predicted today that public criticism would "squelch" the proposal to change the registry of nine United States Lines ships so they could operate in belligerent zones.

"The shipowners," he said in a statement, "are trying to pull this country into the war. Even if they do change flags and their ships are sunk they will squawk for American protection"

He said "flag-swapping" would put 10,000 American seamen out of work if other lines followed the United States Lines plan.

He reiterated the union plan to place 10,000 sailors "on the White House porch" and on picket lines beore the maritime commission offices in Washington

Meanwhile, a strike of the Inter- (A. F. of L.) continued to tie up national Longshoremen's association coastwise traffic in New York harbor. I.L.A. President Joseph P. Ryof representatives of all locals along an said he had called a conference the east coast for Thursday morning.

BARS SUBMARINES

Panama—(P)—Submarines of belligerent nations were prohibited from entering Panamanian waters, ports, havens or anchorages except in cases of emergency, in a government decree issued today.

The measure was aimed to prety or of rendering invalid the "efvent violation of Panama's neutralfects of the Panama declaration relative to the continental maritime security zone"

(The republic of Panama on Sept. 11 prohibited ships of belligerent the Calan Zone and Panamanian powers from "shuttling" between waters. This meant that a belligerent merchantman which already had spent the three months permitted by international law in a Canal Zone port could not then move to Panamanian waters for a similar period of refuge.)

Washington—(P)—An immediate investigation of the proposed transfer of ships of the United States Lines was suggested today by Representative Thill (R-Wis).

"If there is merely a registry transfer and no actual bona fide sale of the vessels, it is at least an attempt to violate the spirit of our neutrality laws," he said in a statement.

Neutrals Buying Goods for Reich, Figures Indicate

Germany's Purchases Fall, Other Countries Show Increase

Washington —(P)— Government figures indicated today that Germany's neutral neighbors may have run millions of dollars worth of American goods past the allied blockade to the Reich in the first month of the war.

Officials declined to discuss the possibility, but the commerce department published figures showing that although Germany obtained scarcely anything from the United States in September, her neutral neighbors greatly stepped up their purchases here.

In September, 1938, for instance, Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, Denmark, Belgium, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, and Switzerland together bought $34,611,000 from the United States. Of that total, $12,675,000 was bought by Germany alone.

This September, Germany's purchases fell off to $607,000, but the American purchases of the middle European group totaled $33,460,000—virtually the same as last year

Neutrals shopped for Germany in the World war, with the result that England and France started rationing them in an attempt to limit their imports to quantities they needed only for themselves.

At least part of the September increase in exports to European neutrals was caused by the disruption of their normal purchases from England, France and Germany

If Germany sent other countries shopping here in September, the figures indicate that Italy and Russia probably were not so employed Italy's imports from the United States increased only from $4,158,000 in September, 1938, to $4,834,000 this September, while Russia's imports fell from $5,595 000 to $1,785,000. Spain's imports gained, but this was believed due to the fact Spain is now rebuilding its war wreckage

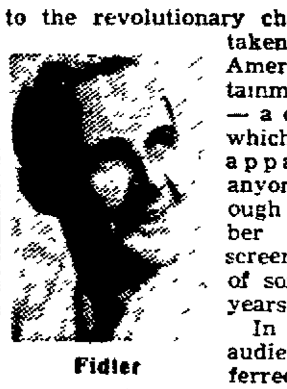
Be A Careful Driver

Movieland Its People and Products

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — Director George B Seitz called my attention yesterday to the revolutionary change that's taken place in America's entertainment tastes — a change which will be apparent to anyone old enough to remember the great screen successes of some twenty years ago



Fidler

In those days audiences preferred movie scenes and stories as far removed from reality as possible. The more exotic the background and the more fantastic the plot, the better the picture was received. Even comedy had to be so exaggerated that it was a grotesque cartoon on factual life Players were deliberately coached to act as little like human beings as possible (if you could see again such an opus as "Queen of Sheba" you'd realize I'm under-stating the case).

Today, Hollywood loses its shirt when it attempts an exotic fanciful like "Lady of the Tropics" and cleans up when it depicts everyday people, meeting interesting but everyday problems. The Hardy Family series (incidentally, our man Seitz has directed seven of those gems), the Jones Family creations and other similar back-yard products are universal favorites. It would be hard to cite any well-made picture, big or small, depicting down-to-earth, believable lives, that has failed at the box office recently.

Can it be the movie industry is approaching an artistic heyday? Any student of literature or the theater will tell you that the fantastic is a sign of infancy —and that the ability to deal with the factual is an indication of maturity.

ODD-FORMATION: During the filming of ice rink scenes for Sonja Henie pictures, one crew member is assigned a special job—searching the newly frozen ice each morning for imbedded flies! The new Henry Fonda manse, furnished entirely in antiques, contains no piece of furniture made later than 1800. Add strange roles: that of Alice Armand, who plays the Weeping Willow in "The Blue Bird" —throughout the entire picture, she does nothing but sit and cry. Required to "chaw" tobacco in "Virginia City," Andy Devine balked—studio ingenuity solved the problem by substituting chocolate-covered cocoanut candy.

Here's irony: For at least a year Paramount's publicity scribes have eluogized the er . . shape . . of Judith Barrett — and let me add that if ever eulogies were in order, they are in her case. Judith's lines are enough to make a culptor swoon with joy. So what? So, playing in "Road to Singapore," she's the only one of 200 girls on the set who doesn't wear a sarong She appears in nothing but the most stodgy street clothes. A shame, forsooth—a crying shame!

PAUL MUNI — while making "We Are Not Alone" — left the solitude of his Palos Verdes country estate for a house in Hollywood. The noise soon decided him to move into his dressing room quarters on the Warner lot—which were enlarged to include a bedroom and all the comforts of home. "We Are Not Alone" is an adaptation of a novel by James Hilton, the cast includes Jane Bryan, Flora Robson, Una O'Connor and the talented and ingratiating British seven-year-old, Raymond Severn.

CUFF NOTES: Jackie Cooper's allowance has been upped five bucks a week for being such a good boy . . . Doris Bowden's so unhappy about Nunnally Johnson's plan to spend six months play-scribbling in New York that he'll return and work here . . . Shirley Booth of stage fame, coming to Hollywood to visit hubby Ed Gardner, will shop for picture offers . . .

Bob Hope, still shuddering over the eerie sets in "The Cat and The Canary," says one was so spooky Boris Karloff tried to buy it for a rumpus room!

How 3 Mothers out of 5 RELIEVE THE MISERY OF THEIR Children's Colds

"I USE VICKS VAPORUB JUST AS MY MOTHER DID"

Briskly massage VapoRub on the throat and chest. Also on the back

VICKS VAPORUB

VICK HOMES—3 out of 5
For two generations Vicks VapoRub has been mothers' standby It is used in more homes than all other medications of its kind put together.

CAN BE USED FREELY . . . VapoRub is an external treatment. There's no "dosing"—no risks of stomach upsets. You simply rub it on throat, chest, and back.

ACTS DIRECT . . . VapoRub goes right to work to bring relief, two direct ways at once: (1) It acts direct on the skin like a poultice; (2) Its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are inhaled direct to the irritated air passages with every breath. Thus direct poultice-and-vapor action quickly loosens phlegm—clears the air passages—checks tendency to cough—eases muscular soreness or tightness—relieves irritation —brings comfort and invites restful sleep.

SENSATIONAL RESULTS IN CLINICAL TESTS
VapoRub is an important medication in Vicks Plan which was tested in a clinic of 2,650 children. Look at the results! Reports from supervising doctors show sickness from colds cut 54.95%; school absences due to colds 77.99% among the children following the Plan—who were instructed to obey specified health rules, to use Vicks Va-tro-nol (nasal medication) when colds threatened, and to use VapoRub if a cold developed. Look in your VapoRub package for story of these tests and directions for following Vicks Plan in your own home.

GRAY HAIR AT MY AGE?
Certainly not - I can't afford it
Canute water SOLVES MY PROBLEM
If you have gray hair, simply wet it with Canute Water and allow to dry. A few applications, (all in one day, if desired) completely re-colors it . . . similar to its former natural shade. Attention only once a month will keep it that way.
Curl your hair or get a permanent, if you wish. There's no interference. Neither will sunshine, salt-water or shampooing disturb the color. Your hair remains clean and natural to the touch and looks natural in any light.

NEXT FRIDAY'S GAMES
Green Bay East versus West.
Manitowoc at Sheboygan Central Sheboygan North at Fond du Lac
Appleton at Oshkosh

FOX River Valley conference football teams will wind up the season Friday night with almost anything liable to happen to the leaders, East West and Manitowoc.

The East-West game will hold the spotlight because of its possibilities A win for East will give the Red Devils a perfect record for the season and 37 straight wins for the last several years.

An East win also will give Manitowoc clear claim to second place and will break the strangle hold that Green Bay teams have held on the first two positions in league standings. West will be shunted into third place with two defeats for the season

Should West pull the unexpected and bump off East, the conference race will close with a 3-way tie for the bunting between East, West and Manitowoc. The conclusions all are based on the premise that Manitowoc won't find Sheboygan Central very tough.

Terrors at Oshkosh

Appleton High school's Terrors, winner in their first league game last week at Sheboygan North, will take on Oshkosh Friday night at Oshkosh. The Terrors will be the underdog as usual and it's very likely they'll have to close the race with a defeat.

Oshkosh opened the season well enough but bogged down before the two Green Bay teams and then suffered further defeats against Manitowoc and Fond du Lac, the latter defeat being a bit of a surprise. To close with a win over Appleton would make for a fair season.

Appleton's biggest trouble will be in scoring a touchdown. The Terrors have played fair defensive ball this season but their offense never has been a threat. They clicked well enough in the touchdown march last week against North but on several other occasions during the evening they had chances but no punch.

Conference scoring figures show East Green Bay dominating all departments. The Red Devils lead in points scored with 116 to their credit. They also lead defensively with 26 scored against them. West and Manitowoc share the second place figures. West has had 31 points scored against it and Manitowoc 35. However, Manitowoc has scored 96 points as against 94 for West.

Individual scoring figures show Al Mancheski, Green Bay East's sensational halfback, setting the pace. He has crossed the goal line nine times for 54 points—almost half of his team's total. Liebman of East is second with 36 points and Powers of West third with 30.

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

AND SO WE COME to the final week of the football score guessing contest. Another group of games are listed below but if you try your luck on them your efforts will count only in the final tabulation for those Wisconsin-Purdue tickets, the grand award. The lucky winner will be announced next Tuesday.

Last week's efforts got a kick because of the many upsets and some of the old standbys didn't do so well picking even the winning team let alone the correct score. But John Brandt, 306 N. Morrison street, who has been trying for a long time, showed rare ability and as a result he'll get a ticket for the Lawrence-Beloit game. John picked one correct score, Penn over Navy 13 to 6, and missed on Northwestern's win over Minnesota by a point.

Howard Crabb and Otto Kirk also picked one correct score and missed on one by a point but Brandt beat them on the number of winning teams. He picked 15 whereas Kirk had 11 and Crabb 10. Some of Brandt's better selections in the winning teams were the Lions over the Giants, Little Chute over St. Norbert, Iowa over Purdue and Northwestern over Minnesota.

Kaukauna—Joseph Gertz, 104 Fourth street, who picked the Rams over the Cardinals, 14 to 0.

Kimberly—No winners.

Menasha—Gordon Meier, 201 Elm street, who picked Notre Dame over the Army, 14 to 0.

New London—No winners.

Neenah—Karl H. Breitrick, route 1, Neenah, who picked St. John, Little Chute, over St. Norbert, 6 to 0, and Notre Dame over Army.

Little Chute—Beany Bongers and Don Peeters tied it up again, tighter than the proverbial drum. Each picked one correct score, missed one by a point and had 12 winning teams. Peeters picked St. John over St. Norbert and missed by a point on Army versus Notre Dame. Bongers picked the Notre Dame-Army score and missed by a point on Penn over the Navy.

One game on last week's card was postponed to later in the season and we didn't learn of it until yesterday. It was the St. Norbert college game.

Here's this week's games. The guesses will be counted only in the final tabulation for the Purdue-Wisconsin tickets.

Badgers Prepare For Ilinois Tilt

Open Intensive Week of Training With Easy Workout

Madison —(P)— An easy workout opened an intensive week of training for the University of Wisconsin football team, as it began "keying" for the Illinois encounter at Champaign, next Saturday.

Line Coach Bob Reagan directed the workout in the absence of Coach Harry Stuhldreher, who was in Chicago.

John Tennant, right halfback, and Tom Farris, quarterback, who were promoted to regular berths Saturday, continued to hold these positions. Bob Cone, of Janesville, alternated with Tennant.

Several changes also were seen in the second team. Bert Conley, moved up to a tacke; Ed Wegner, to end and Orville Fisher, to center. In the backfield, Don Peterson was at quarter and Fred Gage remained on the third string eleven.

Defensive maneuvers were stressed, with the first three varsity clubs taking on a freshman squad which used Illini plays.

Wisconsin's passing improved greatly. An early portion of the drill was for pass offense.

Stuhldreher will be back today and will take charge of the workouts. A hard drill was expected

Chicago Continues 'Victory Vanities'

Chicago —(P)— The show must go on whether the University of Chicago football team wins any games or not.

Many years ago fraternities and clubs on the Midway campus began putting on a Friday show called "Victory Vanities" in conjunction with homecoming celebrations. That was back in the days when the Maroons won their share of grid games.

Now they don't but "Victory Vanities" and homecoming are scheduled this weekend as usual. Not even the fact that the Maroons meet big and powerful Ohio State the next day makes any difference.

Marquette Hopes To Earn Even Break On Season's Play

Milwaukee —(P)— Marquette University's football team concentrated today on getting an even break for the season, first by hurdling Iowa State here next Saturday and then by upsetting Texas Tech at Lubbuck Nov. 18.

The Golden Avalanche has won two games and dropped four, and hasn't broken even for the season since 1936, the Cotton Bowl year.

Coach Paddy Driscoll handed out a few new plays in yesterday's light drill, in which reserves scrimmaged against the freshmen.

Three players excused from the drill were Bob Kemnitz, left guard who played the entire Duquesne game; Ray Apolskis, center, and fireman Bill Burke, end.

Gil Thomsen, the end from Kenosha, will spend most of the week under heat lamps with a sore back and side, memento of his catch of Jimmy Richardson's first touchdown pass against Duquesne. Ray Busler, right tackle, and Johnny Goodyear, right halfback, also will take it easy this week because of injuries.

Football Pirates Beaten by Brooklyn

New York —(P)— The Pittsburgh Pirates sank deeper into the eastern division cellar in the National Football league last night when they went down before the third-place Brooklyn Dodgers, 17-13, before a crowd of 8,951 at Ebbets field. The Pirates have only a tie to show for eight games this season.

Pittsburgh tried hard to score by the air route, in the game postponed from Sunday afternoon because of rain. But a mis-directed pass paved the way for a Dodger touchdown halfway through the second period and the Pirates never could take the lead. They didn't score a touchdown until the last 44 seconds of play and only the accurate kicking of Armand Niccolai kept them in the game.

Ralph Kercheval, star Brooklyn kicker, was taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital for observation after suffering a slight concussion in the second period. Dr. Jerome Asch, team physician, said the injury was not serious.

Zuppke Continues To be Cagiest of Football Coaches

Dutchman's Upset of Michigan Recalls Other Such Games

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.—(P)—Robert Carl Zuppke, 60-year-old University of Illinois coach, isn't known as one of the country's cagiest football teachers for nothing.

It has been a long time between upsets these past few years, but the wily Dutchman made up for lost time last week when the Illini astounded the football faithful by whipping Michigan's hitherto undefeated eleven in decisive fashion.

Zuppke and his teams have been sneaking up on the blind side of powerful opponents for many years.

"Just like Minnesota in 1916," said Zuppke after Saturday's game in explanation of the upset 16-7 victory. That was the year the Gophers' "dream team" rolled over all its opponents up to the Illinois game by scores of 46 to 0 or worse, its victims including strong elevens at Iowa, Wisconsin and Chicago.

Illinois had lost two games and rated not even an outside chance to win. Walter Camp, father of the "all-America" selections and an astute grid critic, came west to see the slaughter, but instead saw Zuppke's undermanned eleven clip the Gophers, 14 to 9.

Somewhat The Same

The situation was somewhat the same last week. Illinois had lost three and tied one game, scoring only six points. But they simply would not be downed, stopping sensational Tom Harmon and all the others.

"All our men were functioning effectively for the first time this season," said Zuppke. "That Harmon is a great back, don't take any credit away from him. The boys were just determined to stop him. My boys had everything to gain and nothing to lose and the game was a challenge to them. If they were to make anything out of the season, they had to do it against Michigan."

In 1921 Zuppke pulled another big upset. That was the year Ohio State needed only a victory over the Illini, which had not won a conference game, for a share of the title. Eleven men played the entire game and won on an intercepted pass, 7 to 0.

Illinois knocked Wisconsin out of the conference title in 1922 when Rune Clark drop-kicked a field goal to whip the Badgers, 3-0, in a game rated a setup for the favored eleven. Other surprise decisions for Zuppke's teams included a 19 to 0 victory over Southern California in 1934; a 6-0 triumph over Northwestern in 1937 and a 17 to 7 decision over Army and Red Cagle in 1929.

Zuppke's last Big Ten title team was in 1927 when the Illini were strong claimants to the national championship.

Zuppke's machine entertains Wisconsin, Big Ten cellar team, this week. The Badgers have lost three conference games. Illinois has yet to play Ohio State and Chicago after Saturday's test.

Harmon, despite his disappointing showing against Illinois, still leads in ground gained with 311 yards in 43 tries, an average of seven yards plus . . . This week he will try to romp against Minnesota's ninth-place outfit . . . Paul Soper, Northwestern junior, rates second in ground gained with 235 yards . . . George Paskvan of Wisconsin is third and Don Clawson of Northwestern fourth in this department . . . Clawson and Soper will be hard put to increase their yardage this week when the Wilcats take on Purdue's aroused eleven . . . Hal Hursh of Indiana and Nile Kinnick of Iowa continue to lead the aerial artists although both were off a bit last Saturday . . . Each completed one pass . . . Kinnick will be tossing them at Notre Dame Saturday and Hursh at Fordham.

Floyd Dean, Iowa back injured in the Indiana game, is ready for action again . . . Ohio State, after hurdling several dangerous Big Ten teams, can take it easy this week against Chicago's Maroons

Shakeup Follows Poor Yale Showing Against Dartmouth

New Haven, Conn. —(P)— Having fired nine regulars from the varsity with the comment that his Yale eleven was "the worst team I think I've ever seen on a Yale field," Coach Ducky Pond buckled down to work today for Saturday's stiff tussle with Brown.

The only three regulars to survive Pond's wrath in the wake of Yale's 33-0 drubbing Saturday at Dartmouth's hands were Capt. Bill Stack, center; Bob Brooks, tackle, and Ted Harrison, a sub back. All the other positions, Ducky declared, were wide open and that, he indicated, meant wide open to the men who were fired if they could make the grade again.

"I don't mind saying that the team on Saturday was the worst I've ever coached at any time at Yale," Fond said disgustedly. "There was something wrong with the competitive spirit."

The men fired were Fred Burr, Hal Whiteman, Hovey Seymour and Hank Wood, the whole backfield: both ends, Alan Bartholemy and Bill Zilly; tackle Bob Knapp, and the guards, Cape Burnam and Frank Kemp.

Clintonville Dines, Fetes Championship Baseball Team

BY GORDON McINTYRE

THE Clintonville Trucker baseball team won its second straight Northern State league championship a month ago but Clintonville fans didn't declare the season officially ended until last evening when the annual baseball banquet was staged at the Marson hotel. The affair was sponsored by the Rotary and Lions clubs and the Clintonville Chamber of Commerce. Approximately 100 persons attended with the women fans being well represented.

After a 7 o'clock dinner, the program opened with a few words of greeting from Ben Miller, president of the baseball association during the last year. He presented members of the squad to the group, praised Manager Len Goerlinger for his efforts, thanked the sponsoring organizations for the dinner, and the Clintonville business houses and plants which aided in financing the team and giving work to players.

The meeting then was turned over to the "roastmaster," the inimitable, effervescent, sensational, stupendous Arthur "Irish" Johnson, Clintonville High school coach, who had the place in an uproar everytime he spoke. The nickname "Irish" is used advisedly for no "Swede" ever had the "line" that pours forth from the lips of Mr. Johnson.

Show Trophy

After showing the trophy presented to the association by a Green Bay sporting goods house on the occasion of the championship, Johnson introduced Mayor A. A Washburn.

His honor welcomed the group in behalf the city, praised the association and the baseball team and the cooperation of the fans who made the season so successful. He mentioned highlights of the season, especially the 21-inning battle with Two Rivers which lasted from 8:30 to 12:45 in the morning, introduced Clintonville's oldest fan, Charles Bennett, 78 years young, and stated that baseball was making Clintonville an athletic center.

W. A. Olen, president of the Clintonville Four Wheel Drive company, credited baseball and sports with making American people fighters, adventurers and courageous in life. It makes democracy and Christianity safer, he added, as he praised the management of the team and the players for their season's efforts.

Tom Greenfield, Packer center and formally at the University of Arizona, was the next speaker. He commented that it was a baseball meeting and that he was a football player and that he'd rather not say much.

Richard "Red" Smith, assistant Packer coach, coach of the Milwaukee Brewer baseball team, and catcher for Clintonville in several games last season, followed. He added his congratulations and discussed the possibility of Clintonville becoming interested in Class D baseball as planned by the Wisconsin State Baseball league. It was his belief Clintonville could support a team as a community project and urged consideration.

McGlynn Principal Speaker

Menasha Favored Over Rockets in Twin City Classic

Neenah Eleven to Battle Bluejays in 24th Grid Game

NEENAH — The twenty-fourth annual football game between Neenah and Menasha grid elevens will be staged at 2:15 Saturday afternoon, Armistice day, at the Neenah High school athletic field, and the Bluejays will be heavy favorites to again win the Twin City classic.

Neither eleven has posted a pretentious record this season, but the Red Rockets' is less assuming than Menasha's. The climax to the football season in the neighboring cities, however, has nearly always been a close tough battle, and probably the 1939 edition won't be much different.

Neenah's record weighs heavily against the Rockets, for in seven starts this season, the Rockets managed only one victory, losing two non-conference games and four Northeastern Wisconsin conference tilts. They defeated West DePere for their only win. But Menasha's record is not outstanding. The Bluejays in six starts have won two games against four defeats, including a nonconference loss to Oshkosh.

Since 1896 Neenah and Menasha teams have clashed 23 times, Menasha winning 14 games to Neenah's eight, and there was a scoreless tie. The Bluejays have piled up 240 points to Neenah's 174.

The record of scores between the two schools since 1896 is as follows:

	Nee.	Men.
1896	0	0	1929	6	18
1897	4	12	1930	6	0
1898	27	0	1931	6	18
1902	0	10	1932	6	13
1903	28	0	1933	6	20
1905	40	5	1934	0	14
1906	0	21	1935	0	13
1911	0	20	1936	12	7
1923	19	0	1937	0	6
1924	3	0	1938	0	6
1926	5	0		—	—
1927	0	19		174	240
1928	6	38

While the Bluejays were idle last weekend, the Rockets dropped a disheartening 7 to 6 contest to Clintonville. It was the first conference victory for the Truckers in five years.

The defeat dropped the Rockets into the doldrums, but looking at it from a Neenah rooter's point, it may be the one thing necessary to inspire the Neenah eleven into a highly improbable upset. The intensive rivalry between the two schools in athletics, however, is sufficient to work either team, regardless of how good it is, into top form.

Tennessee Is Ranking Squad

Notre Dame Rated Second and Texas Aggies Third in Nation

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Although Tennessee is again rated the best football team in the country, the outstanding game on this week's schedule is Texas A. and M. against Southern Methodist.

That much probably could be figured out by any fan without the assistance of the weekly Associated Press national football ranking poll, but the tabulated votes of the experts prove it

Tennessee, for the third straight week, is ranked far ahead of all rivals. The Vols, riding high on last Saturday's 20-0 triumph over Louisiana State, polled the first-place votes of 88 of the 118 participants and a total of 1,114 points this week. But next Saturday they go into hibernation again, meeting the Citadel of Charleston, S. C., last-place team of the Southern conference.

Six Experts Pick Aggies

Meanwhile Texas Aggies, placed first by six of the experts and ranked third for the week with a total of 854 points, encounter the Southern Methodist Mustangs in what may be the deciding game of the Southwest conference race SMU landed in 14th place in this week's ranking with 69 points.

That game is the only one between teams which were placed in the first 20, but Notre Dame, the second-place club, runs up against Iowa, which earned single tenth-place vote and Tulane, eight on the list, meets Alabama, which drew eight points

Notre Dame just did beat out Texas A. and M. for second place, moving up two notches from fourth while the Aggies jumped from sixth to third Michigan, second a week ago, skidded back to ninth place as a result of their defeat by Illinois.

Standings of the teams (points figured on 10-9-8-7-6 etc basis, with first-place votes in parentheses):

Team	Points
1. Tennessee (88)	1 114
2. Notre Dame (11)	857
3. Texas A. and M. (6)	854
4. Southern California (6)	799
6. Oklahoma (3)	622
7. North Carolina	391½
8. Tulane	390½
9. Michigan	104
10. (tie) Ohio State	102
10 (tie) U.C.L.A	102

Second ten: 12 Duquesne, 86, 13, Dartmouth, 70; 14. Southern Methodist, 69; 15. Santa Clara, 58. 16. Duke, 46; 17. New York U., 24; 18. Kentucky, 23; 19. San Jose (Calif) State, 12; 2. Mississippi, 9

Also ran—Alabama, 8; Nebraska and Clemson, 7 each; Northwestern, 6; Holy Cross, 5 Purdue 4; Missouri and Fordham, 2 each; Catholic University, Georgetown Iowa, Texas, Carnegie Tech and Oregon State, 1 each.

This week's games should help the experts decide which are the best teams, for most of the leaders play traditional enemies which are strong even though they're not ranked.

Southern California, for example, has its annual battle with Stanford, Cornell meets its neighbor Colgate; Oklahoma plays Kansas State; North Carolina meets Davidson and Michigan faces Minnesota U C L A has an open date while Ohio State has the next best thing—a game with Chicago

MADISON —(AP)— A Madison store gave away 15 pair of shoes to the most outstanding freshmen on the University of Wisconsin yearling football squad . . . . The whole right side of one of the Wisconsin freshmen teams comes from Waukesha. Harry Fryatt, end; Don Kluge, tackle and Ray Frey, guard, compose the trio. . . . Fred Michaels, Oak Park, Ill., guard on the Badger frosh grid squad, does the punting for his team. He has been flirting with a 70 to 80 yard average . . . Sixty-five members of the Badger yearling eleven are from Wisconsin, 18 are from Illinois, two each from South Dakota and Kentucky, and one each from North Dakota, New York, Pennsylvania Michigan, Minnesota, Montana and New Jersey.

Robert Everett, halfback on the Lawrence college grid squad, spent the summer cutting 18 miles of campus grass a day . . Savior Canadeo, former St. Norbert's boxer, has a puffed chest these days because of a statement made by Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion of the world. "Canadeo is one of the finest amateur boxers I have ever seen in my many years of boxing experience," Tunney said.

Johnny Maltsch, 145 pound senior halfback on the Marquette football team, marches to the top of the class when it comes to cake baking He is assistant baker in his Dad's Milwaukee bakery and really knows his business . . . For the first time in his six years as trainer for Marquette University's football team, Eddie Rozmarynoski, had not been called on the field to administer first aid to an injured player, during the Michigan State came several weeks ago.

The motion picture operator who snaps movies of all Indiana football games through some quirk of fate, missed the 80 yard touchdown run by Clee Maddox, Indiana halfback, when the Hoosiers played the Badgers. When Wisconsin's coach, Harry Stuhldreher heard about it he offered Coach Bob McMillin his copy of the film. Said Harry: "I don't want to look at it again, anyway."

The Plymouth-Kettle Moraine ski club is making improvements on its slide which it expects will be one of the best in the state . . . America OUT-OF-DOORS

HATS OFF TO MR. MALLARD
By Ozark Ripley

WHEN you get to talking about ducks in this part of the country I mean the middle west, the chances are that mallards will be mentioned more often than any other specie. There is something about the gallant mallard that gets most of us.

Mr. Mallard is smarter than most of his brother ducks and maybe the fact that he outsmarts us gives us our high opinion of him Then again, it may be that Mr. or Mrs. Mallard taste so good when browned to a turn. On the water or on the table we must take our hats off to the mallards.

The drake has a nifty plumage that marks him for those who know anything about the duck tribe His size also marks him as he is usually about two feet long and that is quite a lot of duck. He has a bright green head and both he and his mate have a beautiful violet speculum or wing patch. The body of a mallard is a combination of brown and gray and he has a white ring around his neck that is clearly visible

Mallards are targets in spite of their cleverness, because they like to feed in shallow water and frequent wild rice beds when these can be found This love of wild rice, which is found only in shallow water makes the mallard about the earliest of those to head southward The shallow water freezes over before the deep and the feeding grounds of Mr Mallard are shut off

Many sections of the middle west have a local lot of mallards which did not go up to Canada to breed but stayed in this country. These ducks generally stick around until the hunting activity starts them on their way It is warmer in this country than in the Canadian breeding ground and so the migratory instinct comes later in the season for our local ducks.

In flights mallards are fairly swift. They rise from the water directly and make the air in a single rise. This means that the hunter must hold quite a few feet ahead of them if he is to bring them down. A wounded mallard is hard to get in the reeds or rice for he will dive and hang on to the section under water The mallards are so wise that it behooves the hunter to have a well built blind and to keep from exposing himself to view in any way and as "Punk" when he played tackle for Lawrence was the principal speaker

It was his opinion that sports taught loyalty self-discipline, unity teamwork and faith in leadership and teammates. He stated that people in smaller cities scoff of the Red menace but that people in industrial centers are aware of its inroads. Sports, he added, is the greatest means of combating it as Milwaukee industrialists have learned

Several years ago McGlynn said industrialists ceased supporting baseball and sports teams because they felt it wasn't of much value Since they have learned that employes spent their leisure time sitting around indoors listening to agitators and Reds with unfavorable results. Now the industries again have turned their support to athletics with the result workmen either take part in the various games or go out and watch contests and no longer are prey of trouble makers.

He added his belief that Clintonville could handle Class D baseball and that he felt the Wisconsin State league would like to have the Truckers

The meeting closed with presentation of gold baseball charms to members of the championship team and others connected with the club

Three musical numbers also were on the evenings program. One featured Jim Breed in a saxophone solo with Mary Ellen Archambeau as accompanist Another was an instrumental number by Russell Shannon and Wesley Theis They also were accompanied by Miss Archambeau The third number was a vocal quartet showing Ronald Fillnow Harold Mack, George Hafeman and Harold Mitchell

The writer also got in a few words as "unofficial representative of the Seymour baseball club"

Indians Will be Introverts At Coming Baseball Meetings

BY LARRY HAUCK

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The Cleveland Indians' David Harums are going to next month's baseball meetings disguised as introverts.

"We'll have our eyes and ears open" said bespectacled vice president C C Slapnicka today "but we'll let the other clubs come to us"

Last winter the tribal bigwigs went as extroverts Amid much ballyhoo they put half the club on the block, departed with high hopes and came back empty-handed

The Indians aren't satisfied with a third-place ball club—even in the Yankees' American league—but the unexpected development of infield rookies late last summer sowed the seeds of their new independence.

Since the prime days of shortstop Joe Sewell and second baseman Bill Wambsganss, a long string of tribal managers has tried countless players at the two positions

Now Lou Boudreau, up from Buffalo; Ray Mack, a home town boy, and Oscar Grimes, the infield jack-of-all-trades, have the fans talking Good-looking Boudreau, once a star at Illinois, looked like the find of the year in the short field. Grimes, the team's most aggressive player, and Mack, perhaps a little green yet, sparkled at second. For insurance the club has purchased Russ Peters crack shortstop of the Atlanta Southern association club.

"We could use another pitcher who would win 15 games," said Slapnicka, the "discoverer" of 24-game winner Bob Feller, "but then, who couldn't? We aren't going to trade any of the hurlers whose work in the closing weeks put us in third place"

(This presumably means Feller, Mel Harder, Al Milnar and Harry Eisenstat).

Manager Oscar Vitt said recently, however, that any pitcher except Feller might be swapped in a "right" deal

The Redskins could best bait their hook with pitchers and catchers. They want a right-handed hitting outfielder and have some flingers who might do better elsewhere and two of the league's best catchers in Rolli, Hemsley and Frankie Pytlak.

It's hard to find out just who would be traded—it's part of that introvert act.

Chicago Alumni Seeking Action

Report 500 Will Meet Secretly to Discuss Football Setup

Chicago —(AP)— The Daily Maroon, University of Chicago student newspaper, reported today that 500 "loyal graduates" were planning a "secret meeting to decide on a way" to solve the school's football dilemma.

The paper did not disclose the time or place of the meeting, but said further details would be published later in the week. Chicago will observe homecoming this weekend when the grid team meets Ohio State's powerful machine

The paper, in an editorial, also lambasted the school's football policy and suggested the alumni be encouraged to "buy us a good football team."

The editorial said, in part:

"The university has failed to encourage its football-minded alumni enough so that they would be induced to give additional money for athletic scholarships: which would in turn help attract gifts from other alumni. For this violation of common business sense, it is to be censured

"We hear happily of a secret meeting of 500 loyal graduates of the university to decide on a way out of this mess, which is more intolerable to their pride than it is to President Hutchins

"We are glad that even if the university does not feel free to institute athletic scholarships at the expense of the regular scholarship holders it's alumni are interested enough to devote time and, we hope, money to buy us a good football team."

The Maroon eleven has won one game of five played, scoring a total of 12 points to 201 for the opposition

Iowa Stage Set For History to Repeat Itself

Hawkeyes Spoiled Irish Record in 1921, Think They Can Do It Again

BY L. E. SKELLEY

IOWA CITY, IA. —(AP)— Back in 1921 a Notre Dame football team, riding the crest of a 20-game winning streak, came out to the tall corn state to battle Iowa's Hawkeyes.

The Irish captain was Eddie Anderson, a native Iowan who gave a fiery pep talk at a Friday night bonfire rally. He predicted, quite naturally, a Notre Dame victory.

The following day however the Hawkeyes surprised the Irish with a 10 to 7 triumph.

History may repeat itself next Saturday. Notre Dame, now directed by Elmer Layden of Davenport, Ia, instead of the beloved Knute Rockne, once more comes to the Hawkeye stronghold. The Irish have won six straight games and are gunning for an undefeated season

The young Eddie Anderson of 1921 now is Dr. Edward N. Anderson, the Iowa coach. There'll not be a pep talk about a Notre Dame victory this Friday This is the one game Anderson wants the Irish to lose.

It's possible he'll get his wish. The crafty Anderson, who came here last spring from Holy Cross, has developed a team that has exceeded the fondest hopes of the most enthusiastic Hawkeye fan. The 1939 record shows four victories in five games and it is so surprising some Iowans have to check the facts to convince themselves everything is true.

Anderson, a born optimist, has inspired a small squad that had won only two games in two years and produced a fighting ball club that believes it can beat anybody, including Notre Dame. Iowa manpower is so limited the head coach used only three substitutes in beating Purdue, 4 to 0, for the Hawkeyes' third Western conference victory.

The "iron men," however, don't mind the extra work. They filled their dressing room at Purdue with "bring on Notre Dame" yells. Well, the Irish are coming, and they may again regret an invasion of Hawkeye territory.

Pick out your o'coat at the game
If the next weekend finds you at a football game in an old o'coat, do this; look around between quarters . . . pick out the coat you like best in the entire stadium . . . remember the pattern, the color and the cut . . . and then come to see us
Sounds as tho' we were feeling pretty chesty, doesn't it . . . but you'd feel the same if you had a stock of coats like this on hand and had sold the handsomest coats that attended the game we're speaking of.

Interference Bids Likely to Spoil Contract

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Here is a hand held by my husband and myself in a recent game. As you can see, it was a cinch for six-odd. The trouble was that we stopped at four, which was due, in part, to a troublesome bid from an opponent:

"East, dealer."

"My husband sat North, I, South. East dealt and the bidding went:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 heart	3 spades	4 hearts
Pass	Pass	Pass

"I shall not encumber you with any of our arguments which, needless to say, were long and windy, but instead hope that you will consent to be our judge. We will appreciate any hints you may give as to the proper bidding.—Mrs. F. H., Massachusetts.

It is not difficult to appreciate that West's unkind three spade bid made the road rocky for North and South. Incidentally, this is not a bad time to point out that interference bids, when logically conceived (which is to say, when high enough to be of real nuisance value and when safe enough to justify their own height), are potent defensive-offensive weapons. West deserves a vote of thanks from his own partner for making it pretty tough for North and South to reach their laydown slam.

This is not discussing the point put up to me. The specific question is whether North-South could have overcome the "interference" I think they could have.

North should have been a bit more enterprising; his four heart bid did not adequately express his values in support of hearts. Admittedly, it would have required a little nerve and willingness to jeopardize a game for North to have made any stroger bid. But it is my considered judgment that his holding warranted that aggressiveness. From North's point of view, it should have appeared sufficiently safe to contract for eleven tricks in hearts. If South's bid were based merely on the A-Q of hearts and an outside ace, surely only two tricks figured to be lost, the two aces in the hands of the opponents. (Of course, the spade ace might lie over the king instead of under it, but this was very unlikely.) If South's bid were a "minny," he would pass to five hearts and almost certainly make the contract. But if, on the other hand, he had an extra trick, as he did have, North's jump from three spades to five hearts would spur South sufficiently to make him go to a small slam.

Obviously, South could not move over North's four hearts. For all South could tell, the four heart bid, instead of being conservative, might be slightly stretched. Hence, the burden of getting the partnership to the right spot was entirely on North and, as is so often the case, aggressiveness was the vital prerequisite to the best result.

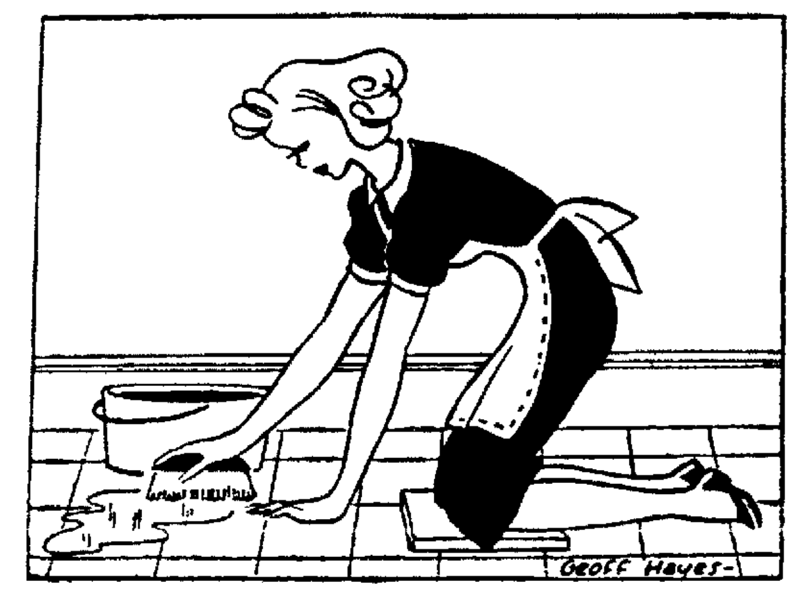
Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY



Scrubbing floors slims the waist and strengthens the spine.

Many of my readers are busy housewives and even though they long to exercise out of doors, or attend salon classes, their duties keep them pretty close to home most of the time Today I write to them.

All household tasks can be made more pleasureable if they are thoughtfully scheduled and done with rhythmical movements. In fact every muscle of the body can have a beneficial work-out if you go about housework as you should

No athlete, amateur or professional could be a winner if he went about his feats with tensed muscles, and a strained attitude He must time his movements and have complete coordination of his body. He takes the necessary rest periods, breathes in fresh air, and nourishes his body with well-balanced meals eaten at regular hours. Housewives would do well to copy his tactics

Begin Day Right

Take enough time out in the morning to eat a proper breakfast, and once the children have been cared for, sit down for a brief rest to plan your day. And don't say you cannot make plans for a day because you have too many interruptions! Plan, and if you must, count on the interruptions Determine just what you are able to do each day, and what must be put off for the morrow. Then hold yourself to the schedule An orderly mind will make orderly movements possible. When you know what you must do, tackle it willingly and try to get both pleasure and exercise from these tasks which you assumed when you married and bore children.

If you must sweep, dust, scrub, wash, cook and make beds, air the room before you work or keep the windows open as you work.

Sweeping with a broom is good for the upper arms, the waist and shoulders providing you hold the broom correctly and sweep in easy, well-timed movements

Dusting can slim your hips, and keep your spine limber if you will bend up and down rhythmically and dust with alternate hands. Don't make the mistake of dusting with right hand only — both arms need action, and both shoulders. See that your hose are not too taut so you will be able to bend and raise easily and gracefully as you reach low under furniture or around baseboards.

Providing you wear a well supporting brassiere, scrubbing clothes on a wash board can firm and lift your bust, if you rub up and down to a "one - two" count, and do not spend too many hours bending over. Once your washing is finished lie flat on the floor for five minutes in limp relaxation When you arise stretch out your arms sideways, shoulder level and rotate them forward and backward for a moment or two. All washing aches will leave you and you are better for the exercise you had!

Getting down on your hands and knees to scrub a floor is truly good for you even though you may not like to do it! Keep your back arched up, and your abdomen held in as you rest on one hand and scrub with the other. Learn to scrub with both hands, one at a time, and your waist will be slimmer and your spine stronger for the hours you spend keeping your floors clean!

Cooking should give you some time to sit in the sun when you prepare fruits and vegetables, either out of doors of near a sunny window. Hum to yourself as you peel, scrape and cut, or do it to radio waltz music. Pretend you are going through the exquisite motions of Hawaiian hand language which brings grace to fingers and consolation to harried spirits! And more beauty for you!

Send for my free leaflet "Banishing the Dowager's Hump" to correct flesh pads. Write me care of this paper and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope to cover postage cost.

My Neighbor Says—

Cover ground over tulips with a mulch three or four inches deep made of leaves and light manure. If this is done as soon as the surface of the earth is frozen, bulbs will not freeze during the Winter.

To reheat leftover rolls or biscuits, dip them quickly into hot water and bake them four minutes in a hot oven. Serve immediately.

Pack soap and cold cream under the finger nails when doing housework It will protect the nails from stains.

Boiled frosting often becomes grainy because of overcooking or stirring while cooking. Add 1 teaspoon of vinegar for each cup of sugar and cook the mixture only until a fine thread forms when a portion is poured from a spoon.

Bake and serve spoon or corn bread in well-buttered, individual baking dishes, custard cups or casseroles. This keeps the bread hotter, requires less baking time and makes it easier to serve.

Empty the vacuum cleaner into a large paper sack (saved from groceries). The sack can be discarded easily and the dust won't fly.

Broom holders, small hooks and screws, help to keep the household cleaning equipment in good working order. Hang up brooms, mops, dusters and cleaning brushes by attaching screws to the handles.

"CREW" HAIRCUT WITH A TUX?

Dear Mrs. Post: Perhaps you'll say that haircuts are outside the subject of etiquette However, its unsuitability is in question, and so I take heart in addressing you My son wears a crew haircut every summer, but this is the first autumn that he has taken a notion to cut his hair short again. For school it might be all right but how is he going to look when he puts on his Tux and goes to a dance? His father thinks we should just let him cut it off again if he wants to But I feel that if you disapprove of the crew cut and tux combination, he might be influenced before the time is too late.

Answer: What all the other boys are doing is of vital importance when a boy is very young. But even though your son must be fifteen or over, it would be my advice, just the same, to let him do as the other boys are doing—especially in this matter of personal appearance. They evidently think it is manly to go around with close-cropped heads. And since he is old enough to wear a tuxedo and to like to go to dances, he must also be old enough to have some interest in girls Therefore, if the girls think this haircut in combination with evening clothes ugly or unsuitable, they will probably bring about a change in local fashion. At least, a few remarks from them, such as "When did you break jail?" would undoubtedly be more effective than anything you or any older people say now.

MAN AND GIRL PROPRIETIES

Dear Mrs. Post: A good friend, who is both hospitable and well-to-do, has invited quite a big party to spend the weekend at a large hotel. You have written several times to the same effect that a man may not pay a woman's hotel bill. But I'm wondering if this case is not an exception. Will not the fact that there will be several married couples in the party make it proper for me to let this host pay for all my expenses? If not, which ones should I insist on paying?

Answer: The fact that he has invited a big party, including husbands and wives, makes every difference. You accept whatever arrangements he has made for every one, but of course not any made separately for you alone By this I mean that were the others all going merely at his suggestion but actually Dutch treat, you would go Dutch treat too!

Story of Grandmother and a Boy Who Liked to Make Noise

BY ANGELO PATRI

Grandma sat by the window hooking a rug. Barry, aged four, was setting up a village with blocks and models. Mother was out doing the marketing. The room was very quiet.

"I'm tired building houses, gran. They're stupid," announced Barry after a time. "What will I do next?"

"Would you like to ride on your hobby horses"

"Nope. What else can I do?"

"I'll play pictures with you. Or maybe you would like to cut out the farm pictures this morning? No? Would you like me to read to you or tell you a story?"

"Nope. Those are dumb things to do. What else can I do?"

"It's your turn to think up something now."

"I don't know anything." He wandered out into the kitchen. He came back shortly with two pot lids which he was banging together like cymbals. Shouting, with scarcely any time, "Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue, Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue," over and over without change, and, banging lustily as he shouted, he marched about the room until grandmother could no longer stand the din. She gathered her work and went up to her room.

Barry marched and thumped and shouted for a few minutes and then followed grandmother. "What you doing, gran? Why don't you stay with me?"

"I don't like the noise," said gran, calmly. "I prefer the quiet of my room."

"If you come back I'll stop."

"No. You see it is a lot of trouble to carry my rug around. I'll stay here. You can stay with me if you like."

Barry looked at the pot lids he still held in his hand. "What can I do if I stay here?"

"I'll let you look at my box of shells."

"That isn't so much fun. Will you take turns, Gran? I'll play band and then I'll look at your shells for you."

"No. You see I am not playing. I am resting and working. The games are your job. You can play band in the living-room. I can rest and work in my room; I have to have quiet for a while."

"Why?"

"Because I'm a grandmother, and grandmothers have to have quiet sometimes. Want to see the shells?"

"I suppose I'll have to," said Barry, laying down his cymbals. "But I do wish your ears were just a little stronger so they could stand a band. I get awful tired of being quiet."

"Seems to me you haven't had much chance to get tired that way today. But I suppose it does seem long to you. When mother comes back you can go into the yard again and make all the noise you want."

"But I'd rather stay and make the noise for you, gran."

"Sorry," said gran, taking another stitch, "but I don't enjoy it."

"Then I'll have to put up with it. Where are the shells?"

Family Affection Sometimes Curtails Children's Liberties

DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—How can a girl of 16 acquire a little individual liberty and privacy in her own home? I have none. My mail, for instance, is opened and read by every member of the family before I get it. Sometimes it is even lost and all that I ever know of a letter is that some one will say: "Oh, Alice, So-and-So said so-and-so in a letter for you that came today." Not only is my incoming mail read but my outgoing mail is also read. Every letter I write must be read and approved by every member of the family before it can be sent. When I ask my father for an allowance he says: "You don't need an allowance. When you want money all you have to do is to ask for it." Well, when I do, I must tell the whole family exactly what I want to do with every nickel. Then they go into a huddle over it and if it doesn't meet with the approval of every member of the family the money is withheld and I must do without something that I am dying to have. Even my bedroom isn't private. If I don't lock the door any person who wishes barges in to see what I am doing. If I dare lock the door Father storms. Grandmother deplores and Mother weeps about the "way I am trying to shut her out of my life." I can't have a telephone call or make one that I don't have to repeat word for word to the assembled family. I can't have any secrets that are dear to every girl. If a boy should call, goodness knows what would happen I suppose they would get earphones so every one could listen in. It isn't that I am trying to hide anything from my family. I just want a little privacy and to do a few things on my own account, without having to tell the family all about them.

ALICE

Answer:

Family affection can be the most beautiful thing on earth, but it can also be the most grinding tyranny on earth. And it is a pathetic and tragical thing that children are so often the victims of it.

Such is the case of the poor, unfortunate girl who writes this letter. Evidently she is the youngest child of a large family, all of whom are determined to mold her according to their own ideas and impress their own image upon her. And to none of them has it occurred that she has any tastes and desires of her own, or any right to any liberty of thought or action.

Mother, for instance, would be furious if anybody opened one of her letters because she knows that all of the kick out of getting a letter is gone if somebody else has pried into it and somebody else's eyes have got the first glimpse of its news. Father would raise the roof if anybody even dared to inquire what he was going to do with any of his money. So would all the sisters and the cousins and the aunts And as for anybody sitting around listening in on a telephone call, that is universally regarded as a breach of decent manners that calls for something with boiling oil in it.

But nobody respects the rights to privacy of the children in the family. Mother takes the gilt off of the gingerbread of their letters by opening them. Father makes them give an account of every nickel they have spent. Everybody puts them through the third degree about what they do, and what they said, and where they have been. Nobody shows them the courtesy of knocking at their doors before entering. Mother and Father don't even regard their confidences as sacred, but blab them out to make a funny story. And if you want the reason why boys and girls leave home as soon as they can, you have it right there. They are answering the human impulse that makes us all crave privacy and a little freedom. There is no crime that is committed against the younger greater than denying them privacy. That it is done in love doesn't palliate the offense.

I am sorry for you, Alice, but I know of no way to help you. Your family will always think they have the right to know all of your affairs and that your soul should be like a shallow drawer that you keep open for their inspection. The people who love us give us everything except the thing we want most, and that is individual freedom.

Teen Age Problems for Mothers

Dear Dorothy Dix—We are worried over our son who is 17 He is a tall, handsome lad, good as gold, a fine student, a good musician, but the trouble is he is crazy about a 17-year-old girl and he won't go with any one else. She is a nice girl of good family, but we are afraid that this affair will interfere with his education and social life. He should go around with many girls. I have thought of talking with the girl's mother about this, but maybe it isn't a good idea. My boy says he is not serious about this girl and for us not to worry about him and fuss about it, but I am afraid it will be a worry if it continues

A WORRIED MOTHER

Answer:

You will make it serious if you continue to nag the boy about it and show him that you think he may be contemplating marriage If you scold him every time he goes to see the girl, and criticize her, you automatically make him her champion and make him think that he thinks a lot more of her than he does. Opposition has made more marriages than any other one thing.

Of course, you are right in saying that it is a bad thing for a girl and boy to keep steady company and that they should play around with a lot of other girls and boys because that gives them a better chance to study the opposite sexes, but this going steady folly is the custom now. All the boys and girls do it and there is nothing that older and wiser people can do to stop them.

My advice to you is to send your boy off to school somewhere. That will break up this association, but the chances are a thousand to one that he will go steady with some other girl wherever he goes

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

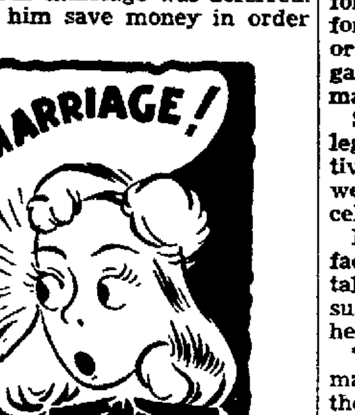
Charlotte is a charming girl with so many virtues that the average man is a bit afraid of her. He wonders if he can fulfill her high expectations of marriage. But she is afflicted with the '29 panic, so she must be unduly sensible for the next few years.

CASE O-192: Charlotte B., aged 29, is a former student of mine.

"Something must be wrong with me," she ruefully confessed as she sat down in my office.

"In high school I had a love affair with a boy of my own age. But when we went to different colleges, we drifted apart. It hurt me because he lost interest, and I thought I'd never fall in love again.

"After a few years, though, I fell in love with another man. He was poor, so our marriage was deferred. I helped him save money in order to furnish a little apartment. Our engagement dragged along for two years.



"Then he started going out with another girl and spending the money which I had helped him save. We quarreled and broke up.

"I vowed then that I was through with men, but after two more years I fell in love with another young man whom I had known ever since high school. In fact, he had always said he loved me but I had been too busy with other boys to take him seriously. I am now in love with him, but he is tied to mammas apron strings and also unable to support a wife.

"Dr. Crane, all my girl friends are getting married. They keep asking when I am going to do the same. I feel so restless and unsettled. For awhile I felt like trying suicide. Now I feel that maybe I was wrong to remain a virtuous girl. What do you think?"

DIAGNOSIS:

Many girls fall in love during high school and feel that their love will remain permanent. Perhaps they use such reasoning to justify their throwing everything into the gamble and permitting their suitors unwarranted sexual liberties.

Within a year a goodly percentage of such love affairs are broken up and the girl is scarcely on speaking terms with the man whom she thought surely she would marry. Isn't it stupid to be so shortsighted?

Suppose Charlotte had permitted each of her three boy friends with whom she was so ardently enamoured, to take advantage of her love. Now she'd feel like a cheap prostitute who had simply sold out for a few false protestations of undying affection.

The '29 Panic

Charlotte is actually better off for having had her three romances, for she has lost none of her charm or desirability as a wife, yet has gained a much better knowledge of masculine psychology.

She is sweet and attractive, a college graduate with a minor executive position which pays her $35 per week. She has charm and an excellent home background.

Her chief trouble has been the fact that she is so superior in marital qualifications that the average suitor is afraid he can't live up to her expectations.

The last boy, for example, is making only $30 per week and is the sole support of his widowed mother. His pride will not permit him to acknowledge to Charlotte that money is the stumbling block in their romance, so he tells her he loves another girl, which I happen to know is a camouflage to hide the real problem.

At the age of about 29 years the average unmarried girl goes into a panic lest she become an old maid.

Dangerous Ages in Women

Many girls are stampeded into unsatisfactory romances or else foolishly plunge into illicit affairs just because they are so afraid of the number 30 which will be their next birthday.

The first dangerous age in women comes in the late teens, as I explained yesterday. The second dangerous age is at the late twenties Tomorrow Cynthia will illustrate the third dangerous age in women.

After A Man's Heart

by JEAN RANDALL

Yesterday: Buff sees Iris Latshaw, and the prospective buyer in a Denver hotel. She telephones George to bring Tim immediately. Buff keeps out of the way, waits until they catch Iris red-handed, and then drives back home.

Chapter 26

ROSES AND A CARD

BUFF didn't want to see George. She hated him because he was a fellow conspirator.

She didn't want to see Iris. Despite the older girl's treachery, her perfect willingness to ruin any number of lives to win for herself a comparatively small sum of money, nevertheless Buff's conscience smarted when she thought of Iris. "Can she help it, the poor sap, that she has no gray matter?"

Above all she didn't want to see him. A curious feeling of hostility toward him had been growing in her mind. He had caused nothing but trouble since she met him. First there was the shock of his accident; then the long hours of nursing him, entertaining him; then the necessity — at least she had felt it to be a necessity — of establishing herself in Boulder for the winter. Then came Iris, and in her wake a whole series of quarrels with Tim.

"If I'd found nobody at the ranch but dear old Webby," she mused, slowing her car down as she neared Boulder. "I'd have hired a new foreman, left word for Atkins that he was fired, and gone on"

She brought her foot down on the accelerator in a defiant spurt of speed, and presently stopped before her own apartment.

There she carried out her plan to the letter. She told the sympathetic Mrs. Webb that she felt ill and was going to bed

"You sure look it, too," observed the housekeeper. "Them blue eyes of yours are a couple of sizes too big for your face and it white as a piece of writing paper! Bed's the place for you, all right. I'll bring you some soup pretty soon that'll put the strength back in you"

"And no callers admitted!"

"Let 'em try to get in: that's all I ask — let 'em try!" was the belligerent assurance.

A little before six George Weekes came, demanding excitedly to see Miss Buff. He was outraged when told she was in bed and in no condition to receive callers. Buff heard his protests.

"But look here, Webby, she'll see me! Why, she called me—why, she was in Denver this very afternoon! She can't be so awfully ill—"

"In Denver, was she? No wonder the poor child came in looking like she was ready to drop! Driving all the way to Denver in the condition she was in to start with . . . I'm telling you, Mr. George, she's hardly et or slept the last few days. I've been telling myself she was sickening for something Pneumonia, most likely, flu at the least. She—"

"Has she complained of a pain in her chest?" George's voice was anxious

"She ain't the complaining kind you ought to know that. But says she, her poor little face all white and drawn, 'Webby dear, put me to bed and don't let no one in. For I'm that sick,' she says, 'I can't bear the sound of nobody but you.'"

Buff chuckled drearily. Drama was in the air, she thought. Webby had caught the infection and was staging a nice little act of her own. Too bad to have poor George worried, but Buff had had all she could endure for one day. She heard him depart, promising to call later in the evening.

An hour later a box of flowers arrived Buff looked on apathetically while Mrs Webb searched for the card "Mr Timothy Corliss" it said; and that was all.

"Well, what did you expect?" the girl asked herself scornfully when Webby had withdrawn in search of vases. "With heartfelt gratitude for saving my life?" or 'With all my love, Buff darling!'" She bit her lip to still its trembling Somehow she found that formal offering of flowers, the card with no personal word on it, harder to bear than silence. When Webby sailed in with two tall jars of roses, her young mistress bade her take them away.

No Lack of Attention

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

"GREAT PLAGUE"

Samuel Pepys had been writing his diary for three years when he set down this note. "The plague has got to Amsterdam!"

The "plague" of which he spoke was a fearful disease which had been spreading across Europe. It is known in history as the Great Plague. Probably it was a new outbreak of the Black Death which had swept away about one-third of the people of Europe 300 years before.

Little girl being lowered to boat during the Great Plague.

The note about Amsterdam was made in 1663. In later days and months, Pepys wrote other things about the Great Plague on the mainland of Europe. Then—in 1665—it came to London! In the diary, we find this entry:

"Great fears of the sickness here in the City. It is said that two or three houses are already shut up. God save us all!

Five weeks later, another note appears:

"This day, in Drury Lane, I saw two or three houses marked with a red cross on the doors, and 'Lord have mercy on us' was written there."

A little later, he wrote:

"I find almost all the town leaving. The coaches and wagons are full of people going into the country. It was a sad noise to hear our bell toll and ring so often today to announce deaths."

Although Pepys spoke of "almost all the town" leaving London, he was thinking of the nobles and rich people. The poor, for the most part, did not have the money to leave. If they had left, they would not have known how to obtain work to care for themselves.

One day Pepys found a little girl who could not pay to go to friends in the country, who were ready to take care of her. So he hired a boat for her, and she was lowered into it from a high bank of the Thames river.

As time went on, illness took more and more lives. In one August week, Pepys says that more than 6,000 persons died.

Altogether, the Great Plague cost the lives of close to 100,000 residents of London and suburbs.

"Nobody but poor wretches in the streets!" wrote Pepys. "So many sick people! So many sad stories! They tell me that in Westminster (a part of London) every doctor is dead."

In the wake of the plague came the Great Fire of London.

Renewed Peace Efforts Weaken Prices of Wheat

Market Turns Downward From Best Levels Since Sept. 7

Chicago—(AP)—Reports that Belgium and the Netherlands had decided on a new effort to restore European peace caused an abrupt about-face in the wheat market today after prices had advanced to the best levels since Sept. 7.

Gains of as much as 1⅛ cents that carried December wheat to 89, within ¼ of a cent of the war-boom peak, were wiped out in the final hour of trading and small fractional losses were substituted in the case of 1940 delivery contracts.

Early strength of wheat was associated with continued drought in the southwest.

Receipts were: wheat two cars, corn 181, oats 9.

Wheat closed unchanged to ¼ lower compared with yesterday's finish, December 88-87⅞, May 86⅝-¾; corn ⅛-⅜ down, December 50⅜-½, May 52⅞-53; oats ¼ off to ⅛ higher.

Four Convicts Work in Fox Hunt Camp in Texas Without Any Prison Guard in Sight

Cut-and-Shoot, Texas—(AP)— Miles inside the thicket and tall pine country of south Texas, were concealment would be simple, four convicts worked today at a fox hunt camp, without a gun or a guard in sight.

Two handled long knives, one dangled automobile keys and the fourth had access to fast horses that know the timber land. But you couldn't pay those men to make a break.

They were servants in the Texas prison system's camp at field trials of the Texas Fox and Wolf hunters' association.

They came and went as they pleased. For years they had been behind prison walls and still have many years to serve. Unrestrained liberty would be sweet.

They are Paul Mitchell of Amarillo, a tow-headed young man who twice ate a last meal in the death cell; Earl Few of Fort Worth, a horse wrangler; O. J. Bills, who cooked three months for Governor W. Lee O'Daniel, and Carson Stump Wilson, former house boy for former Governor Jimmy Allred. The prison system furnishes servants for governors.

Mitchell killed a man in a holdup and was given the death sentence, later commuted; Wilson got seven dollars in a street car holdup and 37 years in prison; Bills is under a 30-year sentence for highway robbery, and Few was given 25 years for robbery and kidnaping.

You'd never guess they were convicts in civilian clothes. They worked like a man on a salary with a wife and kids to go home to each night. They apparently were content and as happy as any one.

Mitchell dangled his car keys. "I've been as far as 700 miles away from prison without a guard, advertising the prison rodeo, but I wouldn't try to escape for anything. I've got a chance to get out some time and I want to go straight."

Few, champion goat roper and wild mare milker of the rodeo, spoke up. "These prison officials trust us."

Said Mitchell: "I ate my last meal twice in the death cell and missed another by a day. (He received two stays and finally a commutation to life.) I guess I had reason to be scared. But I wasn't. But I'd sure be scared stiff if I tried to milk a wild mare like this Few does. That takes real nerve."

Britain Is Fighting To Maintain Rule of Law, Halifax States

London —(AP)— Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax declared tonight that Britain was fighting for a "new world" in which nations would be immune from "insane armed rivalry."

In a broadcast on British war aims Lord Halifax asserted:

"When the challenge in the sphere of international relations is sharpened, as today in Germany, by the denial to men and women of elementary human rights, that challenge is at once extended to something instinctive and profound in the universal conscience of mankind."

"We are therefore fighting to maintain the rule of law and the quality of mercy in dealings between man and man and in the great society of civilized states," he added.

The foreign secretary spoke of the war against Germany as against "the substitution of brute force for law" and aimed at repairing "the damage successively wrought by Germany upon her weaker neighbors."

In discussing plans for an international system of European states, Lord Halifax declared:

"No paper plan will endure that does not freely spring from the will of the peoples which alone can give it life."

Colorado Catches Magpies Without Harming Songbirds

Colorado Springs, Colo. — (AP) — How to catch predatory magpies without harming songbirds is a problem that has been solved by the Colorado state game and fish commission.

The commission sought a new method because the poison bait plan killed too many harmless birds.

G. L. Crawford, commission representative, devised a trap that is baited with a poisoned meat. If is portable, mounted on a truck, and can be moved to several magpie roosts within a period of a day or two. Heretofore trapping was considered too costly because only semi-portable traps were used.

Farmers, bird lovers and hunters approve magpie extinction because the birds are marauders and damage domestic fowl as well as steal the eggs of other wild birds.

Defendant Is Winner In $350 Damage Suit

A municipal court jury yesterday found for the defendant in the $350 damage suit of Carl Reitzner, 1017 W. College avenue, from Joseph Doerfler, 120 S. State street, and the Ohio Casualty company and American Motorists Insurance company, impleaded defendant. Doerfler asked $148.40 in a counterclaim.

The jury found Reitzner 60 per cent and Doerfler 40 per cent negligent in the traffic accident which caused the suit. The accident occurred on Highway 10 just south of Appleton, Dec. 12, 1938. Doerfler will receive 60 per cent or $89.04 on his counterclaim on the basis of the jury's verdict.

Seminoles are Wary Of Weather Balloon

Miami, Fla.—(AP)—Florida's first war scare occurred deep in the Everglades, among the state's real pioneers—the Seminole Indians.

Since word of a great conflict had filtered into the wilderness, the Indians were suspicious when they noticed a strange balloon high in the sky. Indian watchers followed it cautiously for 30 miles or more, and inspected it at a safe distance when it finally settled to earth.

It turned out to be a mechanical stratosphere observer from the United States weather bureau at Miami, and the Indians were rewarded for returning it.

GUEST RETURNS

Butte, Mont. —(AP)— One Montana convict has discovered a sure-fire formula for turning a one-way ticket from the state prison into a return ride.

Released on parole from the Deer Lodge prison, he was told to get out of town as quickly as possible.

On the way through the prison office—so guards say—he stole $11 in stamps.

Reaching Butte, police promptly arrested him for prison officials who said he could come right back for another visit.

Letter From Warsaw Tells About Americans in City

Berlin—(AP)—A letter from a reliable person in Warsaw dated Nov. 3 describing the condition of about 100 Americans still in the Polish city has been seen by the Associated Press correspondent.

"Life gradually is resuming its normal course," the writer said.

"Most houses already have water and electric light. One is already permitted to send letters but only to Germany and in the German language. That is why I am not writing you in English. (Presumably this restriction applied only to Poles.)

"It is very difficult to buy postage stamps. Sometimes the post office doesn't sell any at all and when any are put on sale the public must often stand several hours before the window. I had to stand four hours."

After describing how the American colony of 569 registered last Jan. 1 as permanently living in Poland had dwindled gradually when war approached and how 62 Americans departed Sept. 21 when diplomats were taken from the city, the writer continued:

"Now there are about 100 American citizens in Warsaw, mostly of Polish extraction or women who married Poles—for example, Mrs. Klimpfel, formerly Gloria Patricia Wright of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Szukalski, formerly Joan Lee Donovan of New Bedford, Mass.

"Winston Cram of Nashville, Tenn., chief of the Methodist mission, also remained in Warsaw. There also is a group of American nuns who studied at the university.

"Most of these Americans would like to leave Warsaw and return to America. American women who married Poles would like to leave Europe with their husbands, but it is exceedingly difficult to obtain permission for the husbands, as they are Polish nationals.

"The American consulate has no information concerning the number of Americans in other Polish cities."

National Defense Costing Average of Over $1 Month For Every Person in Nation

(Editor's note: With war abroad in the world, the United States is refurbishing its defenses as insurance against hostilities. What is an expanded national defense costing the taxpayer? And what is he getting for his money? This is the first of two articles discussing these questions.)

BY E. C. DANIEL

Washington —(AP)— An average of more than $1 a month for every man, woman and child in the United States is being assessed against the taxpayers these days for national defense.

That is the premium the nation pays for what it hopes will prove insurance against any foreign invasion. It is divided roughly half-and-half between the army and the navy.

The army's share amounts to only 6.69 per cent of the national budget for the 1940 fiscal year, but the premium is going up as war in Europe makes the insurance risks appear higher and purchases of planes, guns and ships begin to mount.

It surged upward from 5.09 for last year, but the significant rise appeared in another figure. The percentage of the national budget appropriated for army fighting equipment leaped from 1.22 in fiscal 1939 to 4.59 for the current fiscal year.

Modernizing Army

With that money, the army is being modernized. Its expansion has been more spectacular than that of the navy, because it could be accomplished more speedily.

For the most part, the army is spending its share of the dollar-a-month insurance premium for things which, either in quantity or quality, it never had before. Among them are:

3,500 airplanes at a total cost of $210,000,000, including heavy bombers at bout $250,000 each; medium bombers at $90,000; observation planes at $40,000; and pursuit ships at $32,000.

Modern equipment for several hundred 75 mm. field guns.

228 anti-tank guns being bought with 1939 money, $5,000 each.

65,000 Garand semi-automatic rifles that will increase the fire power of the individual soldier about 2½ times.

Seacoast Guns

An undisclosed number of huge seacoast defense guns.

All of these critical items and many more—including five new major air bases, reinforced defenses for the Panama Canal and all the accoutrements of an expanded training program—are being bought as equipment for a protective force and as reserves for an augmented force.

The initial protective force now numbers 175,000 regular army men (whom the taxpayer, incidentally, hires at about $1,000 a year apiece) and 200,000 national guard members. With accelerated recruiting, the initial force soon will total 462,000, and eventually may be expanded to 600,000.

Increasing personnel and equipment is only one phase of the expansion. Aiming at efficiency, the army has reorganized its scattered "housekeeping" troops into seven swift, motor-mechanized divisions. Already they are massing in the south and west for four months of intensified training this winter.

The army's objective is to create a fast, mobile field force ready to concentrate its full fire power at any threatened point on short notice and to form the core of any future citizen army that may be drafted.

Grain Pit's Calm Is Interesting

War in Europe, Drought Fail to Produce Any Excitement

BY FRANK MULLIN

Chicago—(AP)—An unnatural calm, as strange as anything the war has produced, hung today over the trading pits where much of the world's grain is bought and sold.

Despite conflict in Europe and drought in the United States wheat belt, grain men idled about the board of trade's usually boisterous trading floor waiting for the big business they had expected war to bring.

Where once close to 100,000,000 bushels changed hands daily, now 20,000,000 bushels are traded. The war has closed many foreign markets, throwing an even brighter spotlight on the world's biggest grain trading center here, but business still is not good.

When the war broke out there was an immediate rush to buy grain. Prices skyrocketed 20 cents a bushel in the wheat pit but the speculative furor was held in check by government and exchange restrictions.

Nevertheless, during September grain men did the best business of any month since June, 1938, more than 848,000,000 bushels changing hands.

This boom has faded, at least for the time being. Volume in October dropped to 548,000,000 bushels, about 100,000,000 better than a year earlier but only half the volume of October, 1937.

Among reasons attributed by grain men for the market's lackadaisical action in the face of the two most sensational factors they have had to consider in two decades were government regulations restricting speculation, taxes and uncertainty regarding the war itself.

Committee Starts Work On '40 Highway Budget

The county highway committee yesterday began work on its 1940 budget, and present indications are that it will be about the same as this year. A meeting of the committee probably will be held later this week to complete the budget.

The committee ordered the purchase of 1,300 posts from the Jentz Cedar company, Appleton, at 19 cents each and 50 spools of wire from the Montgomery-Ward company at $139.50 for a fence along the superhighway near the county asylum. Bills including $2,269.50 for materials and $175.40 for rights-of-way were allowed.

Friday Marks End of 9-Week School Period

Friday will mark the end of the first nine weeks of school. Grades will be marked on report cards at Appleton High school in individual conferences Thursday and Friday. Each student will be told by each of his teachers just why he is given a particular grade. School authorities reminded parents to look for the cards Friday. Cards must be returned to teachers Monday.

New London Cage Candidates Hold Initial Practice

Coach Isaacson Begins Preparations for Non-Conference Opener

New London—Following right on the heels of the football season, Coach Harold Isaacson called his first basketball practice of the season at Washington High school gymnasium last night and began work on fundamentals for New London's first non-conference cage game tentatively scheduled only two weeks off, with Waupaca here Nov. 21.

Members of the football squad won't be called to practice until Wednesday evening and 28 other candidates took the floor last night. With the exception of Kenneth Ross, all the regular cagers were on the football squad. Practices will continue daily and Coach Isaacson plans to cut his squad to a string of 20 by Friday and concentrate on the pick of the material offered.

Returning to the basketball floor this year are the same players who as freshmen twice defeated the freshmen teams of Kaukauna, Neenah and Menasha four years ago and who, except for the loss of Douglas Hoier, Stewart Hammerberg and Kenneth Brault by graduation consolation winners of the district tournament last year.

Veterans Returning

The mainstays will be Kenneth Ross, ace forward. Harold Pues, star guard. Wally Hammerberg, center; Gordon Meiklejohn handy at both forward and guard; Robert Mavis, guard; and Kenneth Poppy center and all around man. Anton Herres was reserve center on the "A" squad last year and with opportunities open for first string forwards and a full line of berths on the varsity squad candidates will be working hard this week to earn a place on the "20" squad.

Gregory Charlesworth, football coach, is assisting Isaacson with the drills this week. A practice game also is scheduled with West Green Bay High school there on Tuesday evening, Nov. 28, before the conference season begins.

Hodgins Is High As Quarry Squad Wins Three Games

Leaders Defeat Garages In Hortonville-Medina Pin League

New London—Kenneth Hodgins of Hortonville caused the biggest stir in kegling at Prahl's alleys last night when he posted a 525 series for new high total in the Hortonville-Medina league and paced his Quarry team to three wins over the Chev Garages for a 3-game lead over the losers. His 191 line nearly broke the single game mark of 194.

Mikes Garages of Medina took third place from Byron's Lunch of Hortonville by taking two games from the latter.

Goodfellowship League

Alton Hutchison paced the Goodfellowship loop with a 562 count in lines of 188, 196 and 198 for Reetz Shoes as they took two games from Mikes Taverns. W. Graichen cracked high game on the evening with a 203 count and totaled 496. The Ford Tractors subdued the Cedar Lawn Dairies two games to continue farther in the lead. The losers outkegled the winners with more total pins, 2,347 to 2,329. Clarence Hockers of the losers set the pace with counts of 199 and 522.

Lions Club League

The Growlers climbed from last to third place by overhauling the Tamers for two games and the Roarers split the 2-game lead of the Twisters by beating them twice. Top scores were Dr. George Polzin's 545 and G. A. Well's 534 counts.

After A Man's Heart

bitterly, to have been her most popular evening. Mrs Webb was kept busy between the telephone and doorbell. Van dropped in to borrow a few groceries. "If you happen to have a bit of steak lying around, Webby machree, it wouldn't crush me utterly to take it in charge!" Various others of her friends called or called up. Some were so upset at the news of her indisposition that they sent offerings, a detective story, borrowed a week ago from a circulating library; a cup of custard which provoked scornful comment from Webby; a plant from a florist, bearing many large leaves and a few violent magenta blossoms. . . . Buff had no lack of attention that night.

She was settling down to sleep when Webby came in to pay her a last visit.

"That DeMuth girl was here a little while ago," she said. "I'd have come and told you then but Mr. George called up again and talked my arm off."

"Iris — here?" Buff commented faintly.

"Mad as a wet hen, too! When I told her you wasn't well she said she was glad to hear it and no more than you deserved. I said a few things my own self then, Miss Buff. I'll say I did! There's a snake in the grass, if there ever was one, and so I told her."

The girl in the bed held her peace. She had not foreseen that Iris would come here; she had not, as a matter of fact, given much thought to Iris once her scheme was exposed. It troubled her a little that Tim should have told the other girl of Buff's activities. But she was too bruised and sore to mind another ache.

She fell at last into an exhausted sleep; roused once to murmur, "Tim," in a grieved tone; then sank fathoms deep in healthful slumber.

At half-past ten the next morning Van drifted in drowsy-eyed and wishing to "borrow" some food for breakfast. Webby's usually cheerful face was glum as she supplied his needs. At the door he remembered to ask:

"Miss Buff better today, I hope?"

"She's better," the housekeepr said briefly.

A few minutes later George Weekes telephoned and was given the same information.

"Fine!" he said. "Is she up? Can I see her, Mrs. Webb?"

"Not today; she said not today, Mr. George."

"Well, give her my best and tell her I'm coming out tonight anyway just to chat with you about her."

At noon Tim arrived, a Tim who was stern and tired looking; a Tim who, Webby's warm heart told her, needed food and comfort.

"I'm sorry you can't see Miss Buff today," she began glibly. "But you'll let me fix you a little bite of lunch? An omelet, now, and a bit of broiled ham——"

'She Ain't Here'

He shook his head. "Will you ask Miss Buff if I may go in and speak to her for just a minute? I won't stay, I promise not to tire her, but I must see her, Webby."

"She said most particular she couldn't see anybody today, not a soul."

He looked alarmed. "She's really ill then? I thought . . ." He did not tell her what he thought, but fixed his eyes on her anxiously.

Her own broad face grew troubled. "No, she's not ill; not to say ill, exactly. I think it's more that she—that she wants to be left alone. Today anyhow."

He nodded. "I can understand that. Tell her so for me, will you? Tell her I'm feeling like being left alone today, too."

It was late in the afternoon of the second day before Webby's ingenuity, not to say cheerful untruthfulness, failed her. Tim and George came together to the apartment. There was purpose in their stride, in their voices, as they demanded to see Buff.

"Or if she's too ill to have visitors, we want the name of her doctor," was Tim's stern edict.

"She ain't here," she told them simply.

"Not here! Great scott!" Tim ran his fingers through his hair and turned wildly toward his friend. "She's been taken to the hospital! She was a lot sicker than we knew. What hospital, Webby? The Community? Get going George . . . or perhaps we'd better talk to her doctor first."

"She ain't in no hospital."

"Not? Then where——"

"I don't know," Webby rubbed one fat hand over the back of the other. "All I know is that yesterday morning——"

"Yesterday morning?" But she was ill——"

"Shut up, old man, and let her tell her story," George advised.

"Yesterday morning she got up around six and asked me would I get her some breakfast while she packed. She——"

"Packed? Say——"

The housekeeper looked at him patiently. "Mr. Tim, all I got to say is do you want I should tell you about Miss Buff, or don't you?"

Tim scowled. "Carry on."

"While she packed—that's what I said. And she was shutting a suitcase when I called her to breakfast. She had me come in and sit down while she ate, and give me instructions. They was"—she fixed an eye which was at once apologetic and defiant on her listeners—"to give out to anybody that asked that she was too sick to see anybody for a while. She said to keep it up as long's I could; and I done so."

This time it was Weekes who spurred her to further speech.

"And Miss Buff? What did she do? Did she tell you where——"

"No, she never. She said to keep this apartment like it is till the month's up 'cause it'll be pleasanter for me than the ranch. At the end of the month, I'm to move her stuff"—she glanced about the living room—"to the ranch and stay there till her father gives further orders."

"Where has Miss Buff gone?"
